(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — The select Senate Watergate committee said Wednesday that two 1972 Democratic presidential candidates, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, had been aided by illegal corporate donations and that the managers of both campaigns had taken the Fifth Amendment to avoid testifying about them.

A staff-written report said that the nation's largest dairy lobby, Associated Milk Producers Inc., had paid the salaries of campaign workers for Mills and financed an Iowa campaign rally.

It said further that the Gulf Oil Corp. and the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. had also made illegal company donations to the Mills campaign and that cash from AMPI twice was earmarked for delivery to the congressman's campaign.

The report said that the milk lobby used corporate funds to pay for $25,000 in computer services for Humphrey, and that the Humphrey campaign also received an illegal corporate donation from Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing.

Both Humphrey, of Minnesota, and Mills, of Arkansas, were backers of a government hike in milk price supports in 1971, the report said.

Mills is also chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, which oversees the controversial oil depletion allowance.

Gulf Oil had pleaded guilty last fall to making the illegal $15,000 donation to Mills as well as other company contributions to the campaigns of President Nixon and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

The Minnesota concern had also pleaded guilty last year to an illegal donation to the Nixon campaign. The Watergate committee report Wednesday, however, brought the first disclosure of similar violations by the company in behalf of the Humphrey and Mills campaigns.

Investors Said Swindled

NEW YORK (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission said Wednesday it was investigating a company which the Wall Street Journal said cheated investors out of $100 million in an oil drilling swindle.

Attempts to reach the victims of the alleged fraud were mostly unsuccessful.

People who sank money into the scheme, according to the Journal, ranged from self-proclaimed miser Jack Benny, who invested $300,000, to First National City Bank Chairman Walter B. Wriston, who put up $211,000.

Spokesmen for some large firms whose executives allegedly invested in the plan said the scheme was a personal matter and did not involve company policy in any way.

The Wall Street Journal said the swindle may be the biggest of its kind in history. It said investors sank $130 million in the firm and all but $30 million went astray.

The newspaper said the case centers on Home-Stake Production Co., a Tulsa, Okla., tax-shelter oil-drilling company. The SEC declared the company insolvent last September and is investigating.

An SEC spokesman in Washington declined to comment on the newspaper report on the ground that the firm involved was under investigation.

The SEC described the Home-Stake case as a "Ponzi scheme," the Wall Street Journal said. The scheme is named after Charles Ponzi, who took more than $10 million from investors in 1919-20. Basically, it involves paying off early investors with money from later investors.

Royce H. Savage, a former U.S. district judge in Tulsa who is the trustee in Home-Stake's bankruptcy, said Wednesday he would have no comment on the Journal Report. Savage and four groups of investors have filed suits accusing the principals in the company of wrongdoing, the newspaper said.

It reported at least one federal grand jury will convene soon, in Los Angeles or New York, to look into the case. Federal prosecutors in both cities declined comment Wednesday.

The Journal said that Robert S. Trippet, the lawyer who founded Home-Stake in 1955 and ran it until last summer, has consented to a court injunction against securities law violations without admitting or denying any charges by the SEC.

Kent M. Klineman, a New York tax lawyer charged in one suit with taking part in transactions that allowed Trippet to divert about $3 million from the firm, said: "I deny any liability." Klineman said he invested in the scheme himself.

A spokesman for First National City Bank said Wriston and other bank officials who invested in Home-Stake "did not know their names were being used in a promotional way" to attract other investors. "The Home-Stake affair is not a Citibank matter. There was no recommendation at any time to undertake such an investment," the spokesman said.

Other investors, according to the Journal, included: Walter Matthau, $200,000; Andy Williams, $538,000; rock singer David Cassidy, $300,000; Liza Minelli, $231,000; former General Electric Co. Chairman Fred J. Borch, $40,920; and Western Union chairman and president Russell W. McFall, $394,000.

The cash from Gulf Oil was picked up for the Mills race by Carl Arnold, a lobbyist for the American Petroleum Institute, the staff report said. It quoted Arnold as having said that Mills was unaware that the donation was in cash.

"That is the kind of question that Chairman Mills doesn't ask, and he doesn't necessarily want to be told either," Arnold testified.

The Watergate report said both Jack Chesneak, a Minneapolis attorney who was Humphrey's campaign manager, and Joseph Johnson, a milk producer official who headed the Mills race, claimed their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination when called to testify.

Johnson remained on an AMPI salary while working in Mills' campaign in the winter of 1971-72, the report said. Afterwards, he went on Mills' congressional payroll while continuing to run the dark horse effort, it said.

The Watergate investigators placed the total amount of corporate funds used for the Mills race at $1,000 donations from 3M officers for both Humphrey and Mills had been reimbursed illegally with company funds that had been channeled through a consultant in Europe.

On two occasions, the report said, $5,000 in cash was funneled to the Mills race by the milk producers.

In August, 1971, milk official David Parr took $5,000 to Washington and delivered it in a sealed envelope to Mills' administrative assistant, Oscar E. (Gene) Gass, in Mills' Capitol Hill office, the report said.

It said the $5,000 was financed through bogus attorney fees paid by AMPI. However, the investigators quoted Gass as having no recollection of receiving cash and as saying he only recalled checks that Parr had sent to the campaign.

The other $5,000 in cash was given by milk attorney Jake Jacobson of Austin, Tex. To Parr in November, 1971, for the Mills campaign, the report said. It said, however, that Jacobson had denied his law firm was reimbursed by AMPI for political donations.

Mills did not respond to a request by the Watergate chairman, Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., to discuss the donations, the report said.

The draft report was prepared on a bipartisan basis after the basic investigation into Democratic donations in the 1972 presidential race had been done by GOP committee staffers.

Survey Data To Aid Defense In AIM Trials

By H.J. ANDERSON

Star Staff Writer

Sociological data for help in selecting juries, like that used by defense attorneys in the trials of Angela Davis and John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, are now being collected in Lincoln.

Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln psychologists have organized a survey to determine political opinions in Lancaster County, particularly those involving Indians.

The work is in preparation for slightly more than 100 trials, the first of which is scheduled for Monday, in Lincoln resulting from the 1973 American Indian Movement seizure of Wounded Knee, S.D.

UNL psychologists John Berman and Bruce Sales are involved with the survey for research purposes, the two say. The telephone surveyors are to be paid $2 an hour, according to a mid-March court order by presiding Federal Judge Warren K. Urbom.

Urbom authorized up to $1,200 to be spent on the survey under a Criminal Justice Act, according to Gene McBride of the Wounded Knee Defense/Offense Committee in Sioux Falls, S.D. The act allows judges to allot money to aid in the defense of indigent defendants.

Berman, a UNL assistant professor of psychology, said almost 500 Lancaster County residents have been contacted by the telephone surveyors.

Bruce, director of the UNL Law Psychology Graduate Training Program, said the survey has two potential uses.

First, if the results show a lot of prejudice among residents of the judicial district, defense attorneys may petition the judge for a change of venue, Bruce said.

Second, information gathered may clue defense attorneys to the type of person who is likely to be prejudiced, and to the kind of questions that would best find the prejudices, he said.

The attorneys may use that information to challenge prospective jurors, either by showing cause to believe they're unsuited, or in challenges allowing defense attorneys to remove 10 prospective jurors without showing cause.

To be of value, the survey must show that persons of a certain age, race, religion, or income or education level, are likely to be prejudiced, Berman said.

A survey in Minneapolis, Minn., failed, he said, because it showed no substantial relationship between such characteristics and prejudices.

The survey is only useful in jury trials, he also said. The Monday trial will be before Judge Urbom, and no one knows yet which of the trials in Lincoln will be judge or jury.

The survey questionnaire was developed by a New York sociologist, Jay Schulman. He gave it to the Wounded Knee Defense/Offense Committee in Sioux Falls, S.D., which then passed it on to Lincoln.

Schulman used the questionnaire and survey technique in the 1971-72 Harrisburg trial of the Rev. Philip Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister and five others; the Daniel Ellsberg trial, and the Gainesville, Fla., conspiracy trial involving members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War.

Bruce said a public relations firm used Schulman's technique for defense lawyers in the Mitchell and Stans conspiracy trial in connection with financier Robert Vesco.

The questionnaire is read over the telephone to residents of the judicial district where a trial will be held. It is geared to uncover political leanings and prejudices of the polled.

For example, pollsters ask who the person considers the greatest Americans in the past 10 or 15 years, how much they trust government, and which organizations they belong to.

Schulman said in a May, 1973, Psychology Today article, that his technique works in political trials, such as Wounded Knee, because the complexity of the charges in such cases leaves much room for jurors' ideological and moral leanings to enter.

Those institutions, including Iowa State, Kansas State and Colorado State, accepted only 16 or 17 of 150 Nebraska applicants last year, DeCamp said.

Goodding said establishment of a college at NU would cost an estimated $55 million to $60 million.

That level of funding could wipe out what he said were higher priority agricultural items, including:

— needed improvements in plant science research.

— the need for higher salaries at NU's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Farm Bureau members have not expressed major concern about any shortage of veterinarians in Nebraska, he said.

And, Goodding said, he could recall no statement of support for a new college coming from any of the 23 farm groups which worked together on the proposal for an animal health research center at NU.

A number of pre-vet students told the committee that a Nebraska college is needed if they are to realize their ambitions of becoming veterinarians and practicing that profession in Nebraska.

Nebraska students face a 90% rejection rate at other colleges, they said.

Pollution Control Milestone Reached By Feedlot System

By BOB GUENTHER

Star Staff Writer

Efforts to halt water pollution from feedlots reached a milestone this month when a Panhandle feedlot responsible for three fish kills in the last 1 1/2 years completed a system to keep run-off out of an important trout stream.

American Beef Feeding Co. of Minatare, the current owner of a feedlot located on Nine Mile Creek, recently completed a complex system of three lagoons, dikes and pumps to control run-off from the 40,000 cattle the 300-acre yard can hold.

Unconfirmed estimates put the system's price tag in excess of $20,000.

Larry Icenogle, head of the State Department of Environmental Control's (DEC) agricultural pollution section, said in a recent interview it appears the run-off has ended with the installation of the controls. The system is designed to hold run-off from a three-inch rainfall in a 24-hour period.

The latest fish kill occurred this past January. Sheets said, when run-off from American Beef entered Nine Mile Creek killing at least 2,923 fish, including trout.

However, Icenogle and Sheets noted the run-off problem predates American Beef and goes back to the 1960s when the lot was owned by the Shalco Land & Cattle Co. and more recently by the Colossal Cattle Co.

Glancing at a two-inch file of correspondence on the feedlot, Icenogle said the problem dates to when the State Department of Health had jurisdiction over the matter.

The struggle to control run-off at the Minatare lot was uphill. Icenogle said, since the firms were often not anxious to cooperate.

Prior to American Beef's take-over, he said the feedlot's owners "were hard to work with."

In fact, earlier this year, the federal

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) got a court order enjoining American Beef from discharging run-off into the stream. Since the completion of the controls, Icenogle said the injunction has been lifted.

On the day of the hearing on the injunction, Icenogle said local feeders placed an ad in a local paper suggesting the economy could not afford to choose fish over cattle.

Since then, he said American Beef "really got into gear" and completed "a hell of an expensive job."

"It was just a matter of cooperation," Icenogle said. "American Beef did cooperate — you've got to give them credit for that."

Recent checks of the feedlot by a DEC staff member stationed in North Platte have found no problems at the feedlot, he said.

Statewide, Icenogle said many feedlots will have their controls completed this summer and fall. He said 350 feedlots presently have run-off controls.

"Few states can match that," he said. An estimated 800 more feedlots will have to install controls.

Icenogle said the release of $5.7 million in federal funds to aid in construction of feedlot controls will be a help. However, he said he would like the money to be made available to feeders who went ahead and built controls with their own money when the federal government impounded matching funds.

Schmit is to arrange joint hearings with agriculture committees in the other states "in order to determine whether these states will join with Nebraska in the financing and construction of a veterinary school . . ."

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation Wednesday said other higher priority agricultural needs mandate its opposition to creation of a College of Veterinary Medicine at this time.

The Farm Bureau's opposition, announced at a hearing conducted by the Legislature's Agriculture and Environment Committee, may spell doom for tentative proposals to consider establishing the new college at the University of Nebraska.

With members organized in 83 counties, the organization is generally considered to be the most influential agricultural voice in the state.

Regional Plan

Farm Bureau legislative representative Richard Gooding told the committee, however, that there may be "a great deal of merit" in pursuing the possibility of a regional college involving a number of neighboring states.

And, in any event, he said, his organization supports the idea of "generating increased access for Nebraska youth" to other colleges of veterinary medicine through larger payments to cooperating institutions.

Following seven hours of testimony the committee did approve a resolution calling for Nebraska to ask four other major beef producing states if they are interested in joint construction of a regional school for veterinary medicine.

Citing a projected shortage of veterinarians in six years, they authorized Sen. Loran Schmit to contact legislators in Wyoming, South Dakota, North Dakota and Montana.

EPA Quits Detergent Research

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has decided to discontinue financial support for research aimed at developing a phosphate-free household detergent.

The decision, made without any formal announcement, marks the apparent end of EPA's involvement in the long-standing controversy over the continued use of phosphate detergents.

The detergents are a major cause of algae growth in rivers and lakes, and at least six states have laws curtailing the amount of phosphate permitted in such laundering products.

Work Duplicated

Dr. Alphonse F. Forziati of EPA's Office of Research and Development said the federal agency had decided to terminate its research after it became apparent some months ago that its work was largely duplicating that of the detergent industry.

The industry, he said, has already developed several environmentally safe substitutes for phosphate detergents but was withholding them from the market pending further tests.

"The new substitutes are reasonably safe, biodegradable in the environment and produce no bad effects on laundry," Forziati said. "They're going to be slightly inferior in performance. But we've experimented with them before test panels, and we think the job they are going to do will be good enough."

Forziati said, EPA is encouraging the detergent industry to begin marketing the phosphate-free substitutes as soon as the required tests are completed.

One substitute detergent known as NTA was placed on the market two years ago but voluntarily withdrawn by the industry shortly thereafter when questions were raised about its impact on human health. The chemical is currently undergoing tests at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

No Health Hazards

But a recent EPA study of other phosphate-free detergents concluded that they posed no health hazards.

Among the most promising substitutes cited in the study was a polymeric detergent manufactured and sold in West Germany.

The study found that several new detergents using citric acid as a base provide "reasonably satisfactory launderability." It said they have "the great advantage of being completely unobjectionable from the ecological and health hazard standpoints."

But the study, conducted by the Gillette Research Institute in Rockville, Md., warned that substitute detergents will probably cost more.

Million Tons A Year

Currently phosphate detergents are used at a rate of well over one million tons annually, according to EPA. They account for roughly 60% of the phosphate in municipal waste.

Some EPA officials like Forziati contend that the use of non-polluting detergents could reduce the phosphorous content of many waterways by 50%.

But some other pollution-control specialists believe that the use of phosphate-free detergents would have little or no environmental impact.

George W. Burke, a sanitary engineer of the Water Pollution-Control Federation, said that algae growth can take place with only a small amount of phosphate from such sources as farm runoff and untreated human waste. He said only a "very small" number of municipal waste-treatment plants eliminate all phosphates.

Takes So Much

"It just takes so much phosphorous to pollute a river," he said. "If you've got more than enough it won't make any difference."

There are complete bans on the use of phosphate detergents in two states — New York and Indiana. Phosphate detergents are forbidden also in Dade County, Fla., and Akron, Ohio.

Laws restricting detergents to no more than 8.7% phosphate are in effect in four states — Michigan, Connecticut, Florida and Maine — as well as in a number of counties and cities in other states.

But the trend is away from phosphate controls. In the last few years, some 30 state or local phosphate bans have been repealed or declared unconstitutional by the courts.

MRS. KAVANAUGH . . . not bitter.

Religion Comforting To Widow Of POW

Westminster, Colo. (AP) — Abel Larry Kavanagh was gone five years, a North Vietnamese prisoner of war. A year ago, three months after he came home, he killed himself.

Today, his wife Sandy says she is no longer bitter. She finds solace, she says, in her two children and a new-found religion that opposed war.

Kavanaugh, 24, put a .25-caliber pistol to his head and pulled the trigger last June 27 in the bedroom of his father-in-law's house near here. He had returned from captivity just three months earlier. An Adams County coroner's jury concluded that the Marine sergeant committed suicide.

Shortly after his return from captivity, Air Force Col. Theodore Guy charged the young Marine and seven other enlisted men with collaborating with the enemy. Guy was senior officer at the "Platation Camp" near Hanoi, where the men were held.

The secretaries of the Army and Navy ordered the charges dropped the week after Kavanaugh's death.

At the time, Mrs. Kavanaugh said her husband was driven to kill himself by Guy's charges, which she claimed were outrageous. She threatened to file a damage suit against the Pentagon for negligence or wrongful death.

Mrs. Kavanaugh has since decided not to file suit.

"I just don't want to go through it again," she said in an interview at her modest suburban Denver home.

Guy's comments about Kavanaugh's death were similar to those he made a year ago.

The colonel is now vice wing commander of the 31st Tactical Fighter Wing at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

"I haven't thought about it much. But I have pity for his widow," Guy said in a telephone interview.

"I'd do it again," Guy said. "I still feel I was correct."

"There were 566 of us who believed in our country. Eight didn't and a few others. We have no love for those men and still don't."

Guy added that, if Mrs. Kavanaugh had filed suit, the validity of the charges would have been affirmed.

San Jose, Costa Rica (AP) — The U.S. Banana Standard Fruit Co. will stop operations in Costa Rica soon, firm sources say.

They said Tuesday this was in protest over the $1 per 40-pound export box of bananas tax imposed by Costa Rica May 1. The tax increased banana prices in the United States from 16 to 20 cents a pound.

Senate Liberals Abandon Battle For Tax Reform

Washington (UPI) — Liberals abandoned their 10-day fight to cut taxes and end the oil depletion allowance Wednesday after they failed in repeated tries to bring it to a Senate vote.

The Senate then passed on a 58-37 vote an amendment-free bill to increase the national debt to $495 billion through next March 31 — a measure that had been held up while the liberals attempted to attach their tax measures to it.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., vowed, however, "We shall be back on the field of battle at a later day."

Humphrey said he and other liberals gave up because, "I think we have to be able to count, and the votes are not there."

U.S. Wheat Import Quotas Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House released an order by President Nixon Wednesday suspending U.S. wheat import quotas indefinitely. An earlier suspension was due to expire June 30.

With protests from bakers who had claimed bread might soar to $1 per loaf, Nixon last Jan. 28 suspended the yearly quotas so that more foreign grain and flour could enter the U.S. market.

Although the wheat supply continued to be low, no $1 bread materialized and enough U.S. wheat remained available until the 1974 crop, now being harvested, began to reach markets.

The suspension order removed quotas which for many years have limited the amount of milling wheat and flour to enter. The wheat quota had been 800,000 bushels a year, and flour or other milled products 4 million pounds.

Until recently the Agriculture Department had estimated about 5 million bushels of wheat would be imported this fiscal year ending June 30. The latest figures, however, show total imports will not exceed 2 million bushels.

EPA Quits Detergent Research

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has decided to discontinue financial support for research aimed at developing a phosphate-free household detergent.

The decision, made without any formal announcement, marks the apparent end of EPA's involvement in the long-standing controversy over the continued use of phosphate detergents.

The detergents are a major cause of algae growth in rivers and lakes, and at least six states have laws curtailing the amount of phosphate permitted in such laundering products.

Work Duplicated

Dr. Alphonse F. Forzati of EPA's Office of Research and Development said the federal agency had decided to terminate its research after it became apparent some months ago that its work was largely duplicating that of the detergent industry.

The industry, he said, has already developed several environmentally safe substitutes for phosphate detergents but was withholding them from the market pending further tests.

"The new substitutes are reasonably safe, biodegradable in the environment and produce no bad effects on laundry," Forzati said. "They're going to be slightly inferior in performance. But we've experimented with them before test panels, and we think the job they are going to do will be good enough."

Forzati said, EPA is encouraging the detergent industry to begin marketing the phosphate-free substitutes as soon as the required tests are completed.

One substitute detergent known as NTA was placed on the market two years ago but voluntarily withdrawn by the industry shortly thereafter when questions were raised about its impact on human health. The chemical is currently undergoing tests at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

No Health Hazards

But a recent EPA study of other phosphate-free detergents concluded that they posed no health hazards.

Among the most promising substitutes cited in the study was a polymeric detergent manufactured and sold in West Germany.

The study found that several new detergents using citric acid as a base provide "reasonably satisfactory launderability." It said they have "the great advantage of being completely unobjectionable from the ecological and health hazard standpoints."

But the study, conducted by the Gillette Research Institute in Rockville, Md., warned that substitute detergents will probably cost more.

Million Tons A Year

Currently phosphate detergents are used at a rate of well over one million tons annually, according to EPA. They account for roughly 60% of the phosphate in municipal waste.

Some EPA officials like Forzati contend that the use of non-polluting detergents could reduce the phosphorous content of many waterways by 50%.

But some other pollution-control specialists believe that the use of phosphate-free detergents would have little or no environmental impact.

George W. Burke, a sanitary engineer of the Water Pollution-Control Federation, said that algae growth can take place with only a small amount of phosphate from such sources as farm runoff and untreated human waste. He said only a "very small" number of municipal waste-treatment plants eliminate all phosphates.

Takes So Much

"It just takes so much phosphorous to pollute a river," he said. "If you've got more than enough it won't make any difference."

There are complete bans on the use of phosphate detergents in two states — New York and Indiana. Phosphate detergents are forbidden also in Dade County, Fla., and Akron, Ohio.

The $2 billion-a-year oil depletion allowance would have been ended immediately. This much-criticized tax break allows an oil or gas company to deduct 22% of gross income from wells up to a maximum of 50% of gross income.

This amendment was greatly scaled down from a more ambitious tax reform amendment after Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., and other conservatives and oil-state senators began the filibuster against it.

Even after scaling down the amendment, it was obvious the liberals would lose their battle, but they continued to try.

Allen, backed by the administration, said the tax cuts would cause more inflation than it would be worth to the average taxpayer.

Westminster, Colo. (AP) — Abel Larry Kavanaugh was gone five years, a North Vietnamese prisoner of war. A year ago, three months after he came home, he killed himself.

She has gone door to door trying to spread the doctrine and attends religious meetings regularly.

Mrs. Kavanaugh said she finds comfort in seclusion and wants to forget the past, living on military support payments and spending most of her time at home with the children. A relative said she doesn't date and hasn't taken a job.

The nation can learn an important lesson about POWs from his husband's death, according to Mrs. Kavanaugh.

"Nobody knows how they feel deep down," she said. "It takes a lot of time to adjust. They need years."

Guy's comments about Kavanaugh's death were similar to those he made a year ago.

The colonel is now vice wing commander of the 31st Tactical Fighter Wing at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

A portrait of Kavanaugh, dressed in a formal Marine uniform, with Mrs. Kavanaugh, hung prominently on the living room wall. The couple's daughter, Cindy, 6, played outside and Mrs. Kavanaugh held their son, Larry, 4 months old.

Mrs. Kavanaugh, 23, said she studied the Jehovah's Witnesses doctrine while her husband was in POW camp, but that its tenets became more meaningful after his death. She converted from Roman Catholicism.

"I'm a whole new person and my views have changed on everything," she said. "We don't look to the U.S. government as our government. It will be destroyed."

Ehrlichman's Trial Begins; Potential Jurors Queried

Washington (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman went on trial Wednesday in a courtroom near the White House where he once stood on the top rung of power.

He and three White House plumbers are charged with taking part in a civil rights conspiracy involving the Pentagon Papers case of three years ago.

The former domestic adviser to President Nixon listened attentively as U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell went through the time-consuming process of questioning 120 potential jurors from which the final 12 will be chosen.

The questions were aimed at uncovering biases that could stand in the way of a fair verdict in the trial which is expected to last a month.

N.Y. Times Summary

Lebanon Considers Aid

Beirut — In a tense capital the Lebanese cabinet considered what help it might seek from Arab countries against possible new Israeli attacks on Palestinian centers within Lebanon. It was thought the government would like missiles for protection and possibly as a deterrent, but did not want foreign troops on her soil.

Italians To Strike

Rome — Many thousand peasants from all over Italy paraded with tractors across the city in preparation for a one-day walk-out by 1.7 million farmhands which industrial workers will back with a four-hour stoppage. A nationwide contract with higher pay and a guaranteed minimum income is the farmhands' goal, while the industrial workers blame government policies for squeezing wage earners but not the rich.

Russian Officer Freed

Moscow — Pyotr G. Grigorenko, a former general and outspoken human rights campaigner who had been confined since 1969 in mental hospitals, was released and returned to his Moscow home. He appeared tired but completely rational and thanked those who had supported him during confinement. There was another arrest of a Jewish scientist who had planned to take part in an unofficial seminar in Moscow next week.

Trade Possibilities Stressed

Moscow — Soviet officialdom, on the eve of President Nixon's arrival in Moscow, stressed the need for broader long-term trade cooperation with the United States. Keen interest was shown in signing a 10-year trade pact during his talks with Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. Beyond that the buildup was relatively modest, but the routineness of the summits was suggested as most important of all.

Aviators' Neglect Criticized

New York — A Senate Subcommittee has approved a report sharply criticizing the Federal Aviation Administration for allegedly failing to act to insure correction of DC-10 cargo-door defects that led to the crash of an airliner on March 3 outside Paris in which 346 persons were killed.

Budget Cut Not Nixon's

Washington — President Nixon's budget chief disclosed Wednesday that more than half of the $5 billion budget cutback announced last Monday by Nixon results from new estimates that some programs may not spend as much as had been thought, rather than from conscious administration decisions to reduce spending.

Mayor Chairman Elected

San Diego — Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark, N.J., was elected chairman Wednesday of the advisory board of the United States Conference of Mayors. From that post, he is in line to become the first black president of the organization representing the mayors of the country.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest producer, followed the lead of second-ranked Bethlehem Steel and raised prices Wednesday by about 15 per cent on products used in the construction, automobile and appliance industries.

The products represent about half of U.S. Steel's shipments, the company said. In 1973, U.S. Steel's sales totaled $7 billion.

U.S. Steel said it was increasing the base prices on hot rolled, cold rolled and galvanized sheets as well as structural plates and rails.

The hikes are effective July 1. Bethlehem increased prices on Monday by about the same amount.

U.S. Steel said the price for rails would be increased by $30 dollars a ton, from $200 to $230; railroad structural shapes by $20 a ton from $196 to $216; and plates by $28 from $198 to $227.

A spokesman said he did not immediately know the increases in hot and cold rolled sheets.

U.S. Steel did not comment on its reasons for the hikes. Bethlehem had cited a need to improve earnings in order to support its "major expansion program."

U.S. Steel raised prices on June 11 by 8 per cent on bars, semi-finished products, rod, wire, and plates. Those products are also used in the auto and heavy construction industries.

Kansas Cattle Feeder, Scared, Wants 'Out'

MENLO, Kan. — Gary Baalman has no real quarrel with the American housewife. If she thinks beef prices are too high in the supermarket, he more or less agrees with her — at least, in view of the price live cattle are bringing.

But if she feels she has trouble with beef, she should know his problems. Gary Baalman is a cattle feeder. Since January, his carefully kept records show him, he has lost $694,479.09 on the 5,235 cattle he has sold. That is about $133 a head, and the year is only half over. He still has 3,900 head on feed.

Baalman is not alone. The whole industry, ranging from small operators who have a few hundred head to the giant Montfort of Colorado, Inc., which feeds about 250,000, is in similar difficulty.

About 12.5 million of the nation's roughly 116 million beef cattle are in feed lots. And, according to the American National Cattlemen's Association, feeders have lost a total of about $2 billion since the bottom fell out of the market last October.

The high price of grain, stimulated by large export sales, and the rising costs of labor, machinery and other essentials have simply made it next to impossible for the feeder to show a profit on the $38 to $39 a hundredweight his cattle now sell for.

"We're just one, we're just a little one," said Baalman, whose average losses per head are about $2 under those claimed by the industry as a whole. "If it's going to keep going this way, I want out. I can't stand any more of that. But I've got more of it — a lot more of it — in cattle I've got in there now."

Actually, Baalman, 37, has not lost all the money just for himself. He is in partnership with his brothers, Howard, 39, and Keith, 31.

Among them, they run a sizable diversified farming operation 11 miles south of this western Kansas hamlet. It includes 2,800 acres of irrigated corn, 200 of alfalfa and about 1,000 acres of wheat.

But since last summer, with the death of his 41-year-old brother, Charles, who had held the job, and the retirement of his 65-year-old father, E. A. Baalman, who started the farm back in 1929, Gary Baalman has managed the feed lot.

He lives not far from the dusty cattle pens, with his wife, a son, 15, and a daughter, 13, in the trim white house shaded by Chinese elms and pines where he was born.

Gary Baalman has always liked his life, but now he is really worried. And sitting in his slightly air-conditioned office between the house and the feed lot the other day, while the prairie sun raised the temperature outside to 108 degrees, he kept trying to put his finger on what had gone wrong.

"My dad's fed cattle as long as I can remember," he mused. "It used to be 100 to 200 head during the winter. Then in 1957 we built our first permanent pens out here. Dad's kept us here and kept us busy all our lives. That's the reason it is what it is, because we just stayed here and worked at it. I guess he knew that it was the best place for us. And it's been a good life, hell's fire."

In 1957, the Baalmans fed about 450 head of cattle and they have been expanding ever since — that is, until this year, when, like a lot of other feeders, they have been cutting back on replacement cattle.

"Roughly, we're down to

NIXON BUTZ IS BULLISH ON AMERICA

Distributed by Los Angeles Times SYNDICATE

about 3,900 head of our own," he explained. "We do have four pens of neighbors' cattle. They didn't want to take the price for feeders, so we're feeding them.

For our equipment and the manpower we have, we should have between 5,000 and 6,000 head."

In the past, when the operation had grown to about 10,000 head a year, he said, profits averaged $20 to $30 a head, for a total of $120,000 or more.

"We've lost more this year on cattle than we've probably made in the last 15," he went on.

"When you are making a little money on fewer cattle, you weren't making as much. I really believe it's wiped out all our cattle profits for 15 years."

Still pondering the problem, he reached into his files and pulled out records on cattle he sold one week late in June.

Ordinarily, he buys cattle that are about a year old and weigh 600 to 700 pounds and feeds them for about five months, or until they weigh 1,000 to 1,100 pounds. The lot that he sold late in June he bought last September at 450 pounds. After nine months of feeding, they averaged 1,050 pounds.

His records show that the total expense for the 337 cattle, including shipping and feed and other yardage costs, was $176,657.77. The selling price he was $14,993.93, a loss of $61,663.84, or $182.97 a head.

"The highest we ever made on a critter was $128.49," he said, "and they were sold Aug. 10, 1973. That's the most." The highest sales price he has recorded was $56 a hundredweight four days later.

This year only one lot has brought him any profit at all.

"There was one lot that made $4.19 a head," he continued. "I sold them at $50.35 per hundred in January. I'm scared, I tell you that. The last set of feeders I bought, when the auctioneer quit trying to get a bid on those some of bucks and I had 'em, I just shook."

In a way, Baalman and the other cattle feeders are like gamblers who have had to run of tough luck. They have to decide whether to keep buying chips as long as their money holds out and hope for a turn in their fortunes, or take their losses and get out of the game.

"Whether to feed cattle or not to feed cattle," Baalman said, "that's a decision the individual's got to make. It's just a poker game. You buy them at a certain price and figure maybe you can make a little money or at least break even."

With about $3 million invested in land, livestock, buildings, feed and machinery, the Baalmans expect to stay in the game a while longer.

But there are other factors. If the price of corn should stay at $2.50 a bushel or go higher, for instance, it would be tempting to sell the grain and cut the losses on cattle, rather than feeding the cattle and risking more losses.

"We figure about 350,000 bushels of corn," Baalman said, fingering a sheet that put production cost at $1.68 a bushel. "That could be close to $750,000 that we'll give to our cattle next year, if we decide to grind it up out there and feed it . . ."

As he talked, his father, a tall, burly man, came into the office. Hand-rolling a cigarette, the elder Baalman said, "It's taken a lot of years and a hell of a lot of hard work on everybody's part and all I can say is I left the boys with a lot of debts and a lot of headaches but I'm out of it. I've seen some rough times in 45 years in this thing, but this is magnified because of inflation."

Later, Gary Baalman, standing by his feed lots gazing at the empty pens and the cattle he still has to feed, shook his head.

"How something that's worked for years and years if you just follow the program could go so sour . . ." he mused, his voice trailing off. "But what can you do about it? It's like getting run over by a freight train."

The Search For Justice

Because the system of justice in America happens to be relatively more humane and less arbitrary than those systems in many other nations doesn't mean ours can't be improved upon, and the idea that the criminal justice system in this country leaves something to be desired in the areas of consistency and the goals of benefitting both the criminal and society is a topic of current discussion.

Columnist Tom Wicker, a highly vocal influence on behalf of penal and court reform, noted in a recent column that some people in high places who are found guilty of some form of breaching the public trust — which should be regarded as a more serious crime than ordinary violations of the law — are given lesser sentences than are such ordinary criminals as muggers, larcenists and pot smokers.

And he observed that even among the fraternity of Watergate scoundrels, justice is unevenly dispensed. One who pleads bargains, for example, might receive a stiffer sentence than another who denies

Good Help Hard To Keep

The Legislature lost its chief fiscal analyst for higher education this week. Winn Sanderson will leave the fiscal staff to become the University of Nebraska's budget director for $5,000 more a year than he was earning at the Legislature.

In a way it's too bad for the university that Sanderson is leaving the Legislature, even though he is going directly to the NU system, because while he worked for the unicameral, he did a remarkable job of putting together budget recommendations advantageous to the university.

A couple of comments by members of the Legislative Council's executive board relating to Sanderson's departure deserve mention.

Sen. Eugene Mahoney, exec board chairman, complained that other agencies of state government use the Legislature's fiscal staff as a "training ground" for guilt and is subsequently found by a judge or jury to have done the infamous deed.

Such examples of the inconsistent application of justice are not limited to those who breach the public trust by subverting the democratic process.

In Nebraska, for example, two Omaha youths were charged with first degree murder when an elderly woman died of injuries sustained in a purse-snatching incident.

On the other hand, in Nebraska, a Macy youth had juvenile delinquency charges filed against him in connection with an incident in which he allegedly beat another man to death with an ax.

Although there are involved differing circumstances and jurisdictions, the two Nebraska cases cited reflect a terribly inconsistent approach to bringing people to justice and meting out punishment that fits the crime.

Multiply the incidents mentioned by the thousands or tens of thousands and you get an idea of the problem such people as Wicker are talking about.

future staff members. He characterized NU as sometimes appearing to be "a fourth branch of state government."

And implying that Sanderson's departure could have an adverse effect on NU during the next legislative session, Sen. John Savage said, "we should get the word out that we're not pleased." That's about as asinine a comment as we've heard from a senator in a long time.

Sanderson shouldn't be blamed for moving to a much higher-paying job and the university shouldn't be blamed for recruiting a highly competent fiscal expert, nor should it suffer at the hands of the Legislature next session because of it.

What it boils down to — and Mahoney noted this — is that the Legislature will have to up its pay scale if it is to keep its good senior staff members.

ROBERT E.
CARLSON

LINCOLN — Dr. Kissinger has become a world enigma. The recent TV special on his life and achievements was both pertinent and interesting. But one area, due to television time limitation, was insufficiently covered. It was the portion about how the doctor got his unique education. It should have been stressed with greater detail. More should have been told on how his exposure to ideas by two gifted men had much to do with developing his unique mind, that later enabled him to originate his specialized manner of working and thinking.

Kissinger was born in Germany in 1923, of Jewish parents. His father, a school teacher, anticipated Hitler's holocaust and migrated from Germany when his son was nine.

In New York the boy, upon graduating from high school, worked a factory day-shift while studying accounting in City College at night. Drafted in 1943, the Army sent him to Lafayette College for six months. He was then assigned to the 84th Infantry Division.

Here an unexpected influence in his life occurred when he met Private Fritz Kraemer, an educated European with doctorates in history and law. Kraemer impressed upon the young soldier the need for a formal education. "A gentleman," he told him, "did not seek a degree from City College."

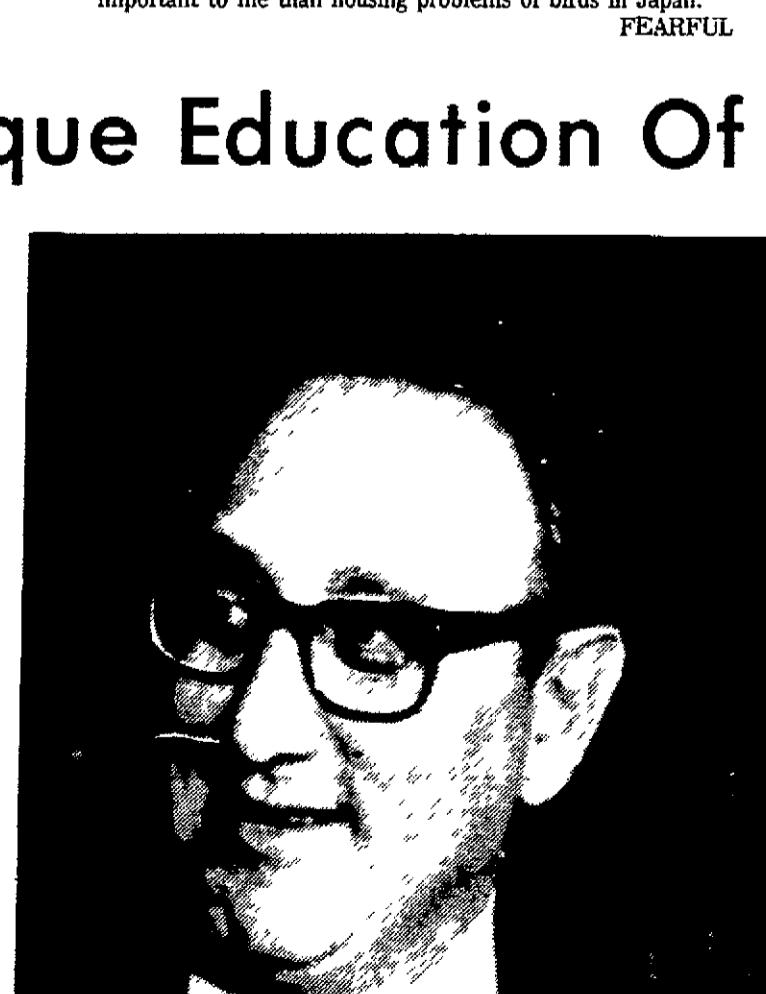

Consequently, after being demobilized from counter-intelligence with the rank of staff sergeant and a year instructing officers on German occupation duties, he wrote to a list of American universities. All rejected him except Harvard, where he began studies in the fall of 1947.

Here, like his army influence by Kraemer, he met an articulate, forthright tutor to guide his choice of studies. He was William Elliot, a Rhodes Scholar, a brilliant senior professor of government and consultant to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs in Washington.

Under Elliot, Kissinger wrote his doctoral dissertation and began evolving the core of his thinking regarding world peace as related to foreign policy. Kissinger's conclusion, which he has consistently followed, was that international peace could be achieved only after a properly conceived policy had been formulated.

An ideal "laboratory" for Kissinger's foreign policy education occurred in 1951. It was then that Elliot created the Harvard International Seminar and selected his brilliant scholar to conduct a special study on international problems.

Here Kissinger came in contact with speakers as varied as William Buckley, Jr., Arthur Schlesinger, Mrs. Roosevelt, Walter Reuther and James Reston. In preparing papers for the meetings, he made initial contacts with high-ranking newspaper, diplomatic, defense and business people. He came to know David Rockefeller, Cyrus Eaton and William Teller.

Kissinger related on his TV special appearance that the unplanned bonus from these seminar meetings occurred later, when his international friends became involved with their own governments. Consequently, through them, he could secure introductions to nearly anyone he wished to meet in the world's governments.

In his studies, discussions and books, Kissinger reached conclusions that caused him to take an unfavorable view of the Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations. He thought their foreign policy too often reacted to moves by other countries when we should be originating our own. He thought our policy had been like the defensive chess player, who often loses the game to the attacker.

Having been a severe critic, Kissinger did not expect a Washington job, such as given to Bundy and Schlesinger under President Kennedy. He was surprised when occasionally called in as a consultant to the National Security Council. The experience gave invaluable insight on how a federal bureaucracy operates.

His 1964-65 Vietnam visits made him disgusted with our involvement without a true foreign policy proportioned to the general world situation. He felt having only a Vietnam policy was bound to lead to disaster. He began thinking about how to end the war so we could initiate more important long-range world policies.

Kissinger's education in the national political arena occurred in 1967 when Governor Rockefeller asked him to write speeches for his campaign to be nominated as the Republican presidential candidate. Both men agreed on the sterility of America's relations with other countries. In one speech, Kissinger wrote: "Before we commit even small forces, all the far-reaching implications of this act must be faced — as they were not faced in Vietnam."

By this time Kissinger's education could be said to have been completed. When selected by President Nixon to be his assistant for national security affairs and later in charge of the State Department, he was prepared to think of implanting startling new foreign policy ideas. Newspaper headlines were made with the dramatic open-door policy with China, arms talks with Russia, parleys with Hanoi that lead to Vietnam withdrawal, disengagement of the Arab-Israeli war, lifting of the oil embargo and now the promise of a permanent peace in the Middle East.

How much credit President Nixon should have for achievements Henry Kissinger has devoted thousands of hours of work and thought to over a period of many years, depends upon each individual's point-of-view. Certainly, for many, Kissinger is one of the few men in government who still possess credibility. Not to be a part of his personal code, and if questioned he becomes angry. Watergate has taught it should be a requisite for all education.

Kansas Cattle Feeder, Scared, Wants 'Out'

MENLO, Kan. — Gary Baalman has no real quarrel with the American housewife. If she thinks beef prices are too high in the supermarket, he more or less agrees with her — at least, in view of the price live cattle are bringing.

But if she feels she has trouble with beef, she should know his problems. Gary Baalman is a cattle feeder. Since January, his carefully kept records show him, he has lost $694,479.09 on the 5,235 cattle he has sold. That is about $133 a head, and the year is only half over. He still has 3,900 head on feed.

Baalman is not alone. The whole industry, ranging from small operators who have a few hundred head to the giant Montfort of Colorado, Inc., which feeds about 250,000, is in similar difficulty.

About 12.5 million of the nation's roughly 116 million beef cattle are in feed lots. And, according to the American National Cattlemen's Association, feeders have lost a total of about $2 billion since the bottom fell out of the market last October.

Justices Limit Inmate Rights At Disciplinary Hearings

Thursday, June 27, 1974 The Lincoln Star 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that prisoners do not have the right to have lawyers or to cross-examine witnesses during disciplinary hearings.

The 6-3 decision was the third defeat prison reform advocates have suffered this week in the high court.

On Monday, the court ruled that states may deny the right to vote to persons who have completed prison terms and that neither prisoners nor reporters have the right to demand press-prisoner interviews.

Wednesday was the last regularly scheduled decision day of the court's 1973-74 term. Left hanging was a decision in the Detroit school busing case, a case the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People describes as the organization's most important since the historic one in 1954 which struck down the doctrine of separate but equal schools.

The court's inaction could mean the school bus decision will be delayed until next fall, when the court's next term opens. But it is scheduled to meet July 8 to hear arguments in the Watergate tapes dispute and a court spokesman said the justices may issue orders then.

In another decision Wednesday, the court handed Justice Department trustbusters a setback with a 5-3 ruling upholding bank mergers in the states of Washington and Connecticut.

In the prison rights case, the court extended to prisoners some but not all of the constitutional guarantees of fair treatment which it had previously said must be provided in parole and probation hearings.

The case arose out of a challenged by inmates of the Nebraska penal complex in Lincoln, Neb.

In the bank merger case, the court said the Justice Department, in arguing that such mergers will lead to domination of all banking by a few banks, "fails to accord full weight to the extensive federal and regulatory barriers to entry into commercial banking."

The Connecticut case involved the Connecticut National Bank and the First New Haven National Bank, the fourth and eighth largest commercial banks in the state.

The Washington state case involved the National Bank of Commerce, with headquarters in Seattle, and Washington Trust of Spokane. They are the second and eighth largest banks in the state.

Warden Charles Wolff Jr. is "satisfied" that Wednesday's U.S. Supreme Court ruling involving a former Nebraska Penal Complex inmate will be a "benefit both to us and to the individual in the long run."

The high court's 6 to 3 decision that prisoners undergoing disciplinary proceedings do not have the right to be represented by lawyers overturned a federal circuit court ruling extending the right.

"We have maintained that this is not necessary for a fair and unbiased evaluation of a disciplinary situation," Wolff stated.

Routine Discipline
"The normal handling of routine discipline should be done with as much dispatch as possible," he said. He added that the new ruling will eliminate a lot of "bureaucratic dealings" and provide the vehicle to handle disciplinary proceedings quickly and fairly.

The case was originally filed by inmate Robert O. McDonnell in 1970. Wolff was listed as the defendant.

At the time of the suit McDonnell was serving time at the complex on a felony conviction. He has since been released but is serving time in a Kansas federal penitentiary on a separate conviction.

Wolff Pleased

Wolff said he was pleased with the decision, but added during the years the case was in litigation, the penal complex "has provided an unbiased approach to disciplinary problems and protects the individual inmate from arbitrary or capricious conduct on the part of institutional personnel."

In its decision, the Supreme Court did uphold a lower court ruling that inmates are entitled to certain other guarantees of due process of law during hearings on disciplinary matters.

In an interview with The Associated Press, McDonnell's original attorney in the case, Douglas Duchek of Lincoln, said Wednesday that the intent of the suit, when filed, included several requests for minimum safeguards for inmates.

Advance Notice

Those safeguards, according to Duchek, included the right to advance written notice and knowledge of the charges against an inmate, and the right to have an attorney present when the evidence is presented.

Duchek said the plaintiffs argued throughout the case that the prisoners should be entitled to "at least" the assistance of another inmate in disciplinary matters.

Duchek noted there was no law stating a prisoner must have an attorney during the hearings per se, "but we have said he should be entitled to some assistance in the presentation of his defense."

Statement Of Evidence
The Supreme Court held that prisoners must be given 24 hours advance, written notice of scheduled appearances before a disciplinary body, and that the

Trucker Fined In Tar Dumping

A Burt County Court judge has fined a truck driver $250 plus court costs for dumping road tar into Bell Creek, a tributary of the Elkhorn River near Craig.

Wes Sheets, biologist for the Game & Parks Commission, Wednesday reported the discharge occurred on June 16 and killed 14,735 fish, including 690 channel catfish, in an 8-12 mile stretch of the creek.

Sheets said the driver was Vincent Hill of Stanton. The conviction came after eyewitnesses reported seeing Hill dump the tar.

The decision also said inmates should be allowed to call witnesses and to present evidence in their defense if it does not jeopardize the safety or goals of the institution, but that an inmate has no constitutional right to cross-examine witnesses against him, and no right to counsel.

Duchek said that since the filing of the suit, requests by complex inmates in the area involved have generally been granted, and that inmates are now afforded the right to defend themselves in disciplinary matters.

Justices Limit Inmate Rights At Disciplinary Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that prisoners do not have the right to have lawyers or to cross-examine witnesses during disciplinary hearings.

The 6-3 decision was the third defeat prison reform advocates have suffered this week in the high court.

On Monday, the court ruled that states may deny the right to vote to persons who have completed prison terms and that neither prisoners nor reporters have the right to demand press-prisoner interviews.

Wednesday was the last regularly scheduled decision day of the court's 1973-74 term. Left hanging was a decision in the Detroit school busing case, a case the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People describes as the organization's most important since the historic one in 1954 which struck down the doctrine of separate but equal schools.

In another decision Wednesday, the court handed Justice Department trustbusters a setback with a 5-3 ruling upholding bank mergers in the states of Washington and Connecticut.

In the prison rights case, the court extended to prisoners some but not all of the constitutional guarantees of fair treatment which it had previously said must be provided in parole and probation hearings.

The case arose out of a challenged by inmates of the Nebraska penal complex in Lincoln, Neb.

In the bank merger case, the court said the Justice Department, in arguing that such mergers will lead to domination of all banking by a few banks, "fails to accord full weight to the extensive federal and regulatory barriers to entry into commercial banking."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Thursday

Scorpio can laugh while it hurts; these are the natives with sense of humor that is wry, hidden, often aimed at self. Here is the jangling, juggling that borders on slapsick but can be as dramatic as a clown visiting the bedside of a sick child. Scorpio is continually changing, using all weapons available and doesn't care who cries "Foul!" Scorpio is the cabaret and the sound can be raucous. Where there is Scorpio, there also is fury and it usually signifies something of significance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New deal is offered. Accept. Roadblocks are removed if you display originality, independence, pioneering spirit. Leo, Aquarius persons might be involved. Pleasant partnership, joint efforts. You gain anchor of security. Key is to build on solid structure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 18): Teach and learn — co-operate, with one who is progressive, independent and intuitive. You may feel pangs of jealousy, but are very trusting. Keep medical, dental appointments. Avoid extremes. Aquarius, Leo persons could play key roles.

GEMINI (May 19-June 20): Flurry of activity, good can be confused. Be careful with valuable. Don't mistake or give up something of value for nothing. Another Gemini and a Sagittarian might be involved. Accent is on creativity, intensified relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have more energy than previously supposed: maintain balance, optimism. Do some remodeling, revising. Get details into focus. Take nothing for granted. Some around you are impatient and lack tact. Don't be disturbed by mediocrity — set your own standards and adhere to principles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stress communication. Read and Write. Answer correspondence. Map publicity campaign. Public info motion. Investigate. Make creative changes. Work with Gemini, Virgo persons. Surprise visit may be on agenda.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Caution should be utilized in financial transactions. Friend who seems timid might be depressed. Be understanding without risking capital. Message should become increasingly clear. Domestic adjustment also is in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle is such that you might experience promotion — and get more work to do. Sift through various possibilities. Protect yourself in emotional clinches. Member of opposite sex is not telling all. Know it and prepare accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Organize. Be aware of inventiveness. Build for future. Knowledge of potential becomes more important than usual. Cancer, Capricorn persons are likely to be involved. What happens behind closed doors has direct effect on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friend who discusses money may have motive other than what appears on surface. Finish rather than begin, find ways of reaching more people, deal directly with arising libra person. Set aside debts, collections. Reach understanding on expenditures with partner, mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. You may be responsible for your own extortions. This could arouse envy, possible retaliation. Accent is on marriage, joint efforts, co-operation from mate or partner. Legal affairs need review. Keep copies of important documents.

ACQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Light touch, diplomacy wins your way. Don't push, force, insist. One close to you needs kid-glove handling. Know it and proceed accordingly. Be the teacher. By sharing knowledge, you also learn. Surprise call might be on you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional responses are intense. Member of opposite sex plays significant role. Forces are scattered. You may be trying to do too much simultaneously. Settle down and get inferences with one who means much to you. Sagittarius, Gemini may be in picture.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dramatic, understand problems of others and know how to express yourself. August should bring the most important months of 1974. Aries, Libra persons play key roles in your life. You are intense, will fight to protect family, often are considered one who is the best listener in the world. Others, however, are not so willing to hear your troubles. You've come to accept this state of affairs.

Too Few Commissioners Delays Permit Request

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The City-County Planning Commission's decision on the Lincoln Housing Authority's request for a special permit to erect a five-story structure for low-income elderly in east Lincoln will be delayed another month.

With the absence of three commission members Wednesday, the motion for denial of the request failed for lack of the required five votes necessary to make a recommendation of approval or denial to the City Council.

Four Support Denial

A motion to deny the proposed 102-unit high rise on the south side of L, east of Haverford Dr., gained the support of Commissioners Bruce Nims, Robert Allington, James Hacker and Arthur Duerschner.

Voting against the denial were Chairman George Williamson and Commissioner Jerry Warner.

At last week's public hearing on the proposal, Taylor Park area residents jammed the City Council chambers to air their opposition to the plan.

They claimed that the structure would dominate the landscape, thus causing an undesirable environmental impact on the residential neighborhood.

Traffic Congestion

The residents also cited increased density and probable traffic congestion as factors supporting their opposition.

Allington said Wednesday that since there was such strong opposition and the City Council went along with that recommendation, both bodies would soon be confronted with another similar proposal.

He and other commission members noted that with such strong feelings on the part of area residents, locating the senior citizens there would not make for a "very warm neighborhood."

On questioning by commission members regarding the possibility of increasing the height and not spreading the structure over such a wide area, architect John Thiessen said the Housing Authority is seeking concept approval and that it would be willing to work with whatever recommendations the commission might make regarding actual proportions of the structure.

Height Not A Factor

Nims said he didn't feel that height was a factor, but that the objectors were protesting the "mass" regardless of the height.

Williamson said he felt that if the commission recommended denial and the City Council went along with that recommendation, both bodies would soon be confronted with another similar proposal.

In other business, the Commission approved a special permit for the Havelock Bank to construct parking and related facilities on the northeast corner of 70th and Adams.

On a 5 to 1 vote, the commission recommended denial of an application for a special permit sought by ABC Electric to construct and operate off-street parking facilities on two lots at 25th and 26th and Y Street.

Didn't Meet Standard

The members indicated that the parking lots could not meet city standards as proposed. Nims was the only member voting against denial of the application.

In other action, the Commission:

—Denied a special permit sought by Irene Hensen to establish a day-care center at 1211 So. 48th.

—Approved the preliminary and final plat of Cornhusker Industrial Plaza generally located at No. 20th and Fairfield.

—Approved the vacation of Cadwaller's Court from the east line of 21st Street to the west line of Capital Parkway.

—Approved the vacation of Dodge Street between the east line of 14th Street and the west line of L.

Gas Discovered

Tehran, Iran (AP) — A natural gas deposit of 70 to 80 trillion 1,000 billion cubic feet is said to have been discovered in the port of Kangan in the Persian Gulf.

Ali Bastani, a usually reliable oil analyst for the Tehran newspaper Evergreen Etelaat, said the deposit was the world's biggest and had increased Iranian gas reserves to 330 trillion cubic feet.

St. Elizabeth OKs Increase In Rates

The board of St. Elizabeth Community Health Center Wednesday approved a proposal to increase rates, effective Monday, by an aggregate total of 5.2%.

In recommending the rate hikes, Executive Director Jack Stiles said they are the first, except in some selective areas, since 1971.

The rate for a private room will increase from $54 to $56 a day. A semi-private room charge will go up from $48 to $53 and intensive care unit charges will rise from $115 to $135.

Other rate increases approved include: Nursery, $32 to $36; delivery room $120 to $130, and a general 12% increase in radiology examinations.

Stiles said he recommended the rate hikes for two reasons:

The higher charges will allow St. Elizabeth to meet the financial requirements for the remainder of 1974 under the Nebraska Hospital Association's voluntary rate review plan. That was not possible under federal economic stabilization controls on the health care industry, lifted April 30, Stiles said.

The rate review plan calls for full costing; that is, hospitals meeting their full financial requirements by charging justified rates, but not overcharging. Under full costing, Stiles said "we bill for services that we render, and do not have offsetting revenues from other departments."

Charges in areas in which increases were approved had not been paying their way, he said. The new rates will allow charges to reach "nearer a level of full costing."

Secondly, Stiles said, the rate hikes "permit us to pick up some of the inflationary costs that we've had." For example, he said costs of some supplies went up as much as 50% over their prices two years ago; suppliers were not under controls as were hospitals, which could not increase their rates to compensate.

The new charges will allow St. Elizabeth "to institute some increases in salaries which we were also not permitted to do under controls," Stiles said.

Railroads Ask Rate Increases

The Nebraska Public Service Commission will conduct a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. July 30, on a request by five railroads to increase freight rates on certain commodities transported within Nebraska borders.

Railroads requesting the increases were: the Union Pacific; Burlington Northern; Chicago and North Western; Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; and the Missouri Pacific.

Assault Made At Knife Point

A 19-year-old Lincoln woman was sexually assaulted at knife-point in her apartment at 2800 Woods Wednesday morning, according to police reports.

Police said the woman had taken out her garbage and when she returned to her apartment the man was waiting inside.

The assailant was described as a white male, 21, 5'8", small build, blondish red hair, and wearing a blue shirt and blue jeans.

Secondly, Stiles said, the rate hikes "permit us to pick up some of the inflationary costs that we've had." For example, he said costs of some supplies went up as much as 50% over their prices two years ago; suppliers were not under controls as were hospitals, which could not increase their rates to compensate.

The new charges will allow St. Elizabeth "to institute some increases in salaries which we were also not permitted to do under controls," Stiles said.

Too Few Commissioners Delays Permit Request

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The City-County Planning Commission's decision on the Lincoln Housing Authority's request for a special permit to erect a five-story structure for low-income elderly in east Lincoln will be delayed another month.

With the absence of three commission members Wednesday, the motion for denial of the request failed for lack of the required five votes necessary to make a recommendation of approval or denial to the City Council.

Four Support Denial

A motion to deny the proposed 102-unit high rise on the south side of L, east of Haverford Dr., gained the support of Commissioners Bruce Nims, Robert Allington, James Hacker and Arthur Duerschner.

Voting against the denial were Chairman George Williamson and Commissioner Jerry Warner.

At last week's public hearing

St. Elizabeth OKs Increase In Rates

The board of St. Elizabeth Community Health Center Wednesday approved a proposal to increase rates, effective Monday, by an aggregate total of 5.2%.

In recommending the rate hikes, Executive Director Jack Stiles said they are the first, except in some selective areas, since 1971.

The rate for a private room will increase from $54 to $56 a day. A semi-private room charge will go up from $48 to $53 and intensive care unit charges will rise from $115 to $135.

Other rate increases approved include: Nursery, $32 to $36; delivery room $120 to $130, and a general 12% increase in radiology examinations.

Stiles said he recommended the rate hikes for two reasons:

The higher charges will allow St. Elizabeth to meet the financial requirements for the remainder of 1974 under the Nebraska Hospital Association's voluntary rate review plan. That was not possible under federal economic stabilization controls on the health care industry, lifted April 30, Stiles said.

The rate review plan calls for full costing; that is, hospitals meeting their full financial requirements by charging justified rates, but not overcharging. Under full costing, Stiles said "we bill for services on the proposal, Taylor Park area residents jammed the City Council chambers to air their opposition to the plan.

They claimed that the structure would dominate the landscape, thus causing an undesirable environmental impact on the residential neighborhood.

Traffic Congestion

The residents also cited increased density and probable traffic congestion as factors supporting their opposition.

Allington said Wednesday that since there was such strong opposition he didn't "like the idea of cramming things down people's throats."

He and other commission members noted that with such strong feelings on the part of area residents, locating the senior citizens there would not make for a "very warm neighborhood."

On questioning by commission members regarding the possibility of increasing the height and not spreading the structure over such a wide area, architect John Thiessen said the Housing Authority is seeking concept approval and that it would be willing to work with whatever recommendations the commission might make regarding actual proportions of the structure.

Height Not A Factor

Nims said he didn't feel that height was a factor, but that the objectors were protesting the "mass" regardless of the height.

Williamson said he felt that if the commission recommended denial and the City Council went along with that recommendation, both bodies would soon be confronted with another similar proposal.

In other business, the Commission approved a special permit for the Havelock Bank to construct parking and related facilities on the northeast corner of 70th and Adams.

On a 5 to 1 vote, the commission recommended denial of an application for a special permit sought by ABC Electric to construct and operate off-street parking facilities on two lots at

White Raps Butz Support

Dick White of Lincoln, State Democratic Party chairman, Wednesday criticized Republican Congressmen Charles Thone and John Y. McCollister for their support of Secretary Butz of Agriculture Earl Butz.

According to White, Butz' farm policy "is ruining thousands of Midland farmers."

Last week, he added, "McCollister publicly reaffirmed his support of Secretary Butz saying he should not resign."

Later, White said, "A close political ally of Thone, 1st Congressional District Young Republican Chairman Phil Schreier, in a letter to the Lincoln Star, defended Butz and Thone as 'having a knowledge of farming problems.'

Dynamite

San Francisco — Sunny mornings. Chockful of vitamins. I shaved with one of those new razors you see on TV. It has two blades. The first blade heads for the whisker. The whisker ducks into a foxhole.

As it pops up again crying: "Misused me again, you dope!" — the second blade chops him off like Lizzie Borden with her ax.

Did I come out like the man on TV: "Say! That is a close shave!"

No sir, I couldn't tell a bit of difference. Looked in the mirror but only saw the familiar Starest face. (The creases return.

POSTCARD by

Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Sunny mornings. Chockful of vitamins. I shaved with one of those new razors you see on TV. It has two blades. The first blade heads for the whisker. The whisker ducks into a foxhole.

As it pops up again crying: "Missed me again, you dope" — the second blade chops him off like Lizzie Borden with her ax.

Did I come out like the man on TV? "Say! That is a close shave!"

No sir, I couldn't tell a bit of difference. Looked in the mirror but only saw the familiar St-prest face. (The creases return.)

No ironing needed.)

We have plenty of TV around here now that school is out. "Turn it down!" "What? I can't hear you."

Do you have audophilia?

The Journal of Psychiatry in Zurich discovered it. It goes with the man who keeps a tape deck in the car.

"The audophilic is a middle-aged male and intelligent," says the Journal. "He comes from professions requiring highly conscientious performance: the church, accountancy, medicine and especially psychiatry." (Dig that!)

Well, audophilia is what you have when you turn the knob and turn the sound way up!

It is a power symbol. If Mother had turned you loose with an ax on the boy next door, you would have grown up without this need of leverage.

But Mother did not. She said: "Let that boy alone!"

You were frustrated. Now you turn up the volume. That's compensation. And psychiatrists try to tune you down at $50 per hour.

lushing it up in the harem.

"The audiophilic's wife almost always demands that the volume be turned down." (Much good it will do her. With a harem, who needs a nagger?)

Does the wife do this because her eardrums are bursting? Or it annoys the neighbors who are pounding on the walls? Or it keeps the baby awake?

The Journal in Zurich doesn't offer a solution. Doesn't suggest tape listening may be harmful to your health.

Just lets you go on swinging on a chandelier.

Dynamite Thefts Worry African Officials

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The big problem here with thefts by employees does not involve paper clips and factory tools. It's dynamite.

Police officials say they are becoming more and more concerned about the theft of dynamite, chiefly by gold miners. Much of it winds up in witchdoctors' concoctions, they add.

But in one case a traffic violator blew up a courthouse with stolen dynamite.

"Despite all the controls above ground, we have, in the last analysis, to rely on miners' integrity not to take dynamite home with them," said a mine security supervisor.

"We only hear of the major tragedies and therefore think they're isolated — not so," said police Col. Gordon Polson.

"Only a few weeks ago two children in the western Transvaal lost their fingers while playing with detonators which they had picked up. There are always minor incidents like these."

"Something has to be done to stop this nonsense once and for all, and I personally am going to do everything in my power to see that the authorities apply themselves to thrashing out the necessary counter-measures," Polson said.

Choir Ringers Gather For Handbell Festival

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Only in the practice sessions was there any dissonance from about 1,000 handbells ringing en masse at the hands of more than 450 players Wednesday.

They met white-gloved over bells polished and glistening in Lincoln for an area festival of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers.

Handbells are one of the most ancient musical instruments.

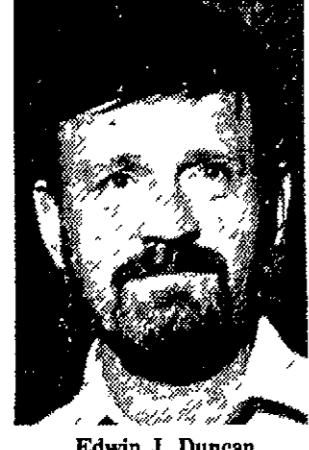

"It's principally an activity that has appealed to young people," said Edwin J. Duncan of Salt Lake City, Utah, director of the Wesley Bell Ringers.

However, in recent years, Duncan said handbell ringing has "come into rest homes" where the elderly can enjoy playing one or two bells apiece in simple songs.

Duncan, a high school math teacher who has played handbells for 10 years, pointed out that bell ringing has also caught on among the mentally retarded, a group of which played at the Lincoln festival.

The touring Wesley Bell Ringers are "one of the outstanding choirs in the country," he said, citing their "range of notes and some of the innovations we've brought into bell ringing in the last 10 years."

The 16-member choir that uses 96 bells was "one of the first to introduce four-in-hand ringing," he said. The clappers swivel in one plane, Duncan explained; thus if two bells in each hand are held with the planes perpendicular, differing hand movement determines which bell will ring.

"It's easier to play fast passages," he said, and "you can play more bells with fewer people" using the four-in-hand technique that has "spread around the country."

Some purists, he said, still use the method of striking the bell and holding it out toward the audience. Duncan's handbell ringers strike the bell, then draw it back toward them, resulting in a different sound.

"People can be very innovative" with ringing techniques, he said, noting "Our style of ringing is very different from everything that is seen here."

Although handbell ringers are mostly in church-based choirs and perform sacred works, music has been written for the age range of handbell ringers went from 5th graders to "mature ladies," Duncan laughed. And they took their playing seriously.

Mike Wurst, 17, was teaching his part to fellow choir member Christina Mauroza, 16. Mike had to leave later Wednesday afternoon for a swim meet at his home in Kansas City, Mo.

Christina has played twice as long as Mike has (since January), but he said, "You have to be used to the part and the specific bells in each piece."

Others added color to their ringing: One choir of seven girls wore lime-sherbet identical dresses, with their leader in the same costume.

LAP Votes To Allow Director To Engage Counsel For Suits

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Following an hour long executive session held behind locked doors, the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) board of directors unanimously voted to allow executive director Jesse Payne to engage legal counsel to advise the group regarding two lawsuits recently filed against Payne and the organization.

Board member Carl Kopenes made the motion that Payne be empowered to engage legal counsel "to evaluate and preliminarily report on the status of the legal actions, their nature and what the envelope may be."

Two months of dissension between Payne and the LAP staff came to light Friday when Delores Tucker, LAP's alcoholism project director, filed a suit against Payne after being fired from her $9,400 a year position earlier in the day.

Mrs. Tucker requested a temporary restraining order to prevent her termination. She alleged that Payne's decision to fire her was willful, capricious and retaliatory.

She said her firing was in retaliation for a letter sent to the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism which was critical of Payne's leadership and alleged certain violations of provisions of the program's grant.

A second suit filed Monday against LAP by former LAP employee Jo Doris Bragg alleged that her contract was broken by LAP and the organization owes her $2,561 for the remainder of the term of her contract and another $887 in unpaid vacation time.

According to the suit Bragg resigned on April 10 due to "extended pressure" from Payne. She later asked to withdraw her resignation, but was refused.

Mrs. Bragg also contended that she had accrued 146 hours of overtime during her employment with LAP and 27½ hours of vacation time for which she has received no compensation.

The problems between Payne and LAP staff first came to public attention when the low-income members of the board would not support a request for funding from the city council because of dissension in the staff.

Payne reported a week later to the board that the "misunderstanding" had been cleared up. The low-income board members subsequently supported the funding request which was granted by the City Council.

Choir Ringers Gather For Handbell Festival

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Only in the practice sessions was there any dissonance from about 1,000 handbells ringing en masse at the hands of more than 450 players Wednesday.

They met white-gloved over bells polished and glistening in Lincoln for an area festival of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers.

Handbells are one of the most ancient musical instruments.

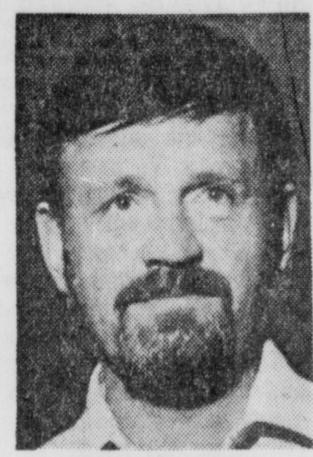

"It's principally an activity that has appealed to young people," said Edwin J. Duncan of Salt Lake City, Utah, director of the Wesley Bell Ringers.

However, in recent years, Duncan said handbell ringing has "come into rest homes" where the elderly can enjoy playing one or two bells apiece in simple songs.

Duncan, a high school math teacher who has played handbells for 10 years, pointed out that bell ringing has also caught on among the mentally retarded, a group of which played at the Lincoln festival.

The touring Wesley Bell Ringers are "one of the outstanding choirs in the country," he said, citing their "range of notes and some of the innovations we've brought into bell ringing in the last 10 years."

The 16-member choir that uses 96 bells was "one of the first to introduce four-in-hand ringing," he said. The clappers swivel in one plane, Duncan explained; thus if two bells in each hand are held with the planes perpendicular, differing hand movement determines which bell will ring.

"It's easier to play fast passages," he said, and "you can play more bells with fewer people" using the four-in-hand technique that has "spread around the country."

Some purists, he said, still use the method of striking the bell and holding it out toward the audience. Duncan's handbell ringers strike the bell, then draw it back toward them, resulting in a different sound.

"People can be very innovative" with ringing techniques, he said, noting "Our style of ringing is very different from everything that is seen here."

Although handbell ringers are mostly in church-based choirs and perform sacred works, music has been written for the instrument ranging from "Turkey in the Straw" to "Stars and Stripes Forever," Duncan said.

While choirs are more common, allowing running passages, "I've seen solo ringers play as many as 51 bells," he said.

A handbell will tarnish if left fingerprinted; hence, players wear gloves. Two octaves, or 25 bells, cost about $800, Duncan said.

The bulk of handbell ringers play three octaves, or 37 bells costing $1,500. A few choirs have five octaves, 61 bells, which would cost $4,000.

Handbell ringing is branching out to groups such as Boy Scouts, Duncan said. A Seattle junior high school has introduced a handbell course in its music curriculum.

At the Lincoln festival, the age range of handbell ringers went from 5th graders to "mature ladies," Duncan laughed. And they took their playing seriously.

Mike Wurst, 17, was teaching his part to fellow choir member Christina Mauroza, 16. Mike had to leave later Wednesday afternoon for a swim meet at his home in Kansas City, Mo.

Christina has played twice as long as Mike has (since January), but he said, "You have to be used to the part and the specific bells in each piece."

Others added color to their ringing: One choir of seven girls wore lime-sherbet identical dresses, with their leader in the same costume.

LAP Votes To Allow Director To Engage Counsel For Suits

By JIM DeCAMP
Star Staff Writer

Following an hour long executive session held behind locked doors, the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) board of directors unanimously voted to allow executive director Jesse Payne to engage legal counsel to advise the group regarding two lawsuits recently filed against Payne and the organization.

Board member Carl Kopenes made the motion that Payne be empowered to engage legal counsel "to evaluate and preliminarily report on the status of the legal actions, their nature and what the involvement may be."

Two months of dissension between Payne and the LAP staff came to light Friday when Delores Tucker, LAP's alcoholism project director, filed a suit against Payne after being fired from her $9,400 a year position earlier in the day.

Mrs. Tucker requested a temporary restraining order to prevent her termination. She alleged that Payne's decision to fire her was willful, capricious and retaliatory.

She said her firing was in retaliation for a letter sent to the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism which was critical of Payne's leadership and alleged certain violations of provisions of the program's grant.

A second suit filed Monday

Exon Appoints Two To Panel On Retardation

Gov. J. James Exon announced Wednesday two appointments to the State Office of Mental Retardation Advisory Committee.

Dr. Edward La Crosse of the Mayer Children's Institute at the Medical Center in Omaha was named to replace Donald Kasperek of Lincoln.

Robert Schulz of Norfolk was appointed to replace Mrs. Mary Osborn of Central City.

Exon also announced the appointment of Dr. Fred D. Strider of Omaha to the State Board of Examiners of Psychologists.

Tour Planned For Nebraska Liberty Bell

Nebraska's Liberty Bell will tour the state, the first time since its 1950 tour to promote sale of U.S. Savings Bonds.

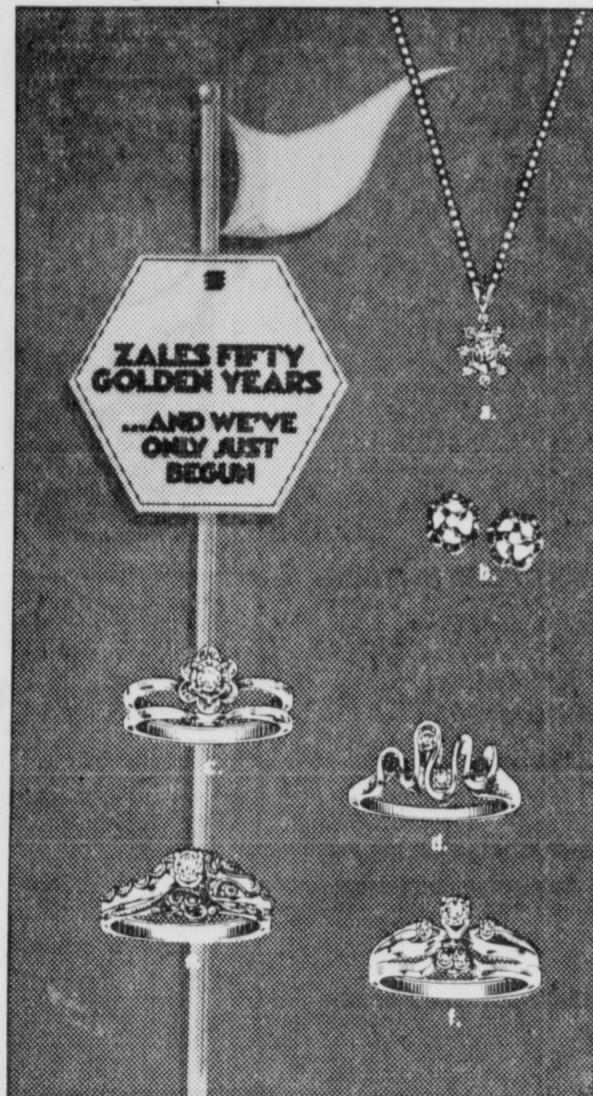

The tour begins July 4 in Seward, according to Don Searcy, executive director of the Nebraska American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

Gov. J. James Exon will ring the bell during Seward's annual Fourth of July celebrations.

The tour will be conducted by the Nebraska Bicentennial "200" Club. NARBC will make the bell available for parades, floats and celebrations through 1976, Searcy said.

Education, Merchandising Vital To Food Programs

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

"It is the right of every child to eat right," even though food service is a "come-lately to the school system," the president of the American School Food Service Association said Wednesday in Lincoln.

Because "25% of food that is plate-ready goes into garbage cans" in America, Lucille Barnett charged food service workers to educate children, as well as parents and civic groups, about nutrition.

Mrs. Barnett, of Spartanburg, S.C., spoke at the 17th annual Nebraska School Food Service Association (NSFA) convention and workshop that continues through Friday.

Good For You'

"No more can we say, 'Eat it. It's good for you.' We truly must merchandise our programs more," she said.

Nebraska is one of five states to receive a contract from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to continue for another 18 months its nutritional education program.

In it, state officials are developing nutrition education programs for 2nd- and 4th-graders, including those at Norris-Hickman School, relating food experiences with the classroom. Besides raising food awareness, the program includes analysis, such as plate waste observation.

According to a nutrition survey, Mrs. Barnett said 60% of Americans in 1955 had a good diet, but in 1965 that figure dropped to 50%.

100,000 Pounds

"The average person will eat 100,000 pounds of food" in a lifetime, but "some will try to get theirs before they're 40, she said, noting that "72 million Americans are overweight."

Meanwhile, 90,000 individual school units dish up 4.7 billion lunches each year, Mrs. Barnett said, and breakfast programs are expanding, now at 1.4 million servings daily.

Choice of Color

Mrs. Barnett said she told Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and Nebraskan Dr. Clayton Yeutter: "The thing that's wrong with school food services is that we've never had a scandal" and have "done such a good job in silence."

She urged the food service conferees to prompt their school administrators to implement new federal guidelines for reduced-price lunches, based on liberalized family-income levels.

That "will bring in more middle-income children," she said.

51 Million

Of 51 million households in America, Mrs. Barnett said only 10 million are in the lower-income bracket, and only 2 million families have incomes exceeding $25,000 annually.

That means 39 million households are classified middle-income — "three-quarters of America is in the squeeze" paying taxes and aiding the needy, she said, declaring "We've got to show to the Congress that we are interested in all children in this country."

The national association continues to work for food service worker certification, awarding professional status much like teachers have, she said, charging the NSFA to increase its membership to gain that status.

New NSFA officers were installed Wednesday. They are Bernice Slack, Minden, president; Alma Johnson, Sutton, president-elect; Phyllis Milligan, Fairbury, treasurer and president-elect for 1974-75; Mary Warwick, North Platte, secretary; and Delores Fickensher, Gothenberg, treasurer for 1974-75.

DAC Plan Proposals To Be Shown July 11

A preview of the Downtown Advisory Committee's (DAC) tentative recommendations for a central business district improvement plan is set for July 11.

DAC Chairman Dick White told Lincoln Chamber of Commerce directors Wednesday that consultants with Barton-Ashman Associates of Chicago will present depth reports on several proposed projects, including 13th St. beautification, "Que Place," renovation of the Haymarket area and the square block now occupied by the old federal courthouse and post office and the old City Hall, the proposed Pershing Municipal Auditorium convention complex, the Centrum, the state office building and additional off-street parking facilities.

Chamber members, Lincoln government, business and civic leaders and the news media will be invited to attend the 10 a.m. session at the Cornhusker Hotel, White said.

He noted that the "hardworking" DAC, which has been at work for just under a year, has indicated that the 13th St. project should be implemented first.

On the back burner, pending further discussion, White said, are issues involving over-all city transit problems and "what to do with O Street." Downtown's options on O Street "are completely open," he said.

The chamber directors also heard Roy Carlson of the sports and recreation committee outline plans for the Chamber's annual Fourth of July celebration at Holmes Park Lake.

The expanded schedule of events will include public swimming, lake-to-lake canoe racing, children's block parades, sailboating, family canoe racing, concerts by the Lincoln Municipal Band and the VFW Youth Band, skydiving and the traditional fireworks display.

Carlson said the sponsors expect a larger turnout than the estimated 20,000 to 30,000 people who took in the event last year. He noted there will be no concession stands, so families should provide their own food and refreshments.

Camp visitor and counselor make their way to the fishing hole.

The Rev. Gene Dappen and Pete Bunker wait patiently for the big catch.

Camp Provides New Confidence

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"We played softball last night," said Marie Mulder of Adams, literally aglow.

"It was the first time I tried to run... the first time any of us tried to run," she added, her words trailing off into nothingness, just the memories of that experience, a true breakthrough.

Mrs. Mulder and all of the campers at Easter Seal's Camp Kiwanis near Milford through Wednesday have, at some time in the past, been victimized by a stroke.

Most have the use of only one arm or leg. Some have speech disabilities. Most walk with the use of canes, braces or walkers. Some are confined to wheelchairs.

And they all are pioneers of sorts.

They are participating in the first such camping session for stroke victims to be held in Nebraska.

They are discovering capabilities they thought they had lost.

The Rev. Gene Keith Dappen of Beatrice, a slight man sporting a beard and mustache, astounded the other campers Monday morning by using his one good arm to climb to the treetops and into a treehouse.

From there, he issued a challenge to his fellow campers, insisting they join him.

No one did. But each and every one of the onlookers shared Dappen's pride, his feeling of accomplishment.

Pete Bunker was still marveling at Dappen's feat as he carried his tackle box and fishing pole down to the water hole.

Digressing from the tree climb — the subject most on his mind — Bunker said he had "tried swimming a little" the day before.

"I found out I could do something... not as well as before (the stroke), mind you, but it was encouraging to know I can do it," he observed. "Now I have to work at it and develop those muscles."

The camp session is designed for the stroke victims' "abilities, not their disabilities," emphasized Paul Limas of Papillion, director of the Nebraska Easter Seals Society's camp.

"We want to get them out of their sheltered situations and make them aware of their capabilities," the director continued. "They all have adjustments to make; we hope to help them make that adjustment; to give them a new outlook... a new image of themselves and their environment."

"They can become more self-sufficient by realizing they still are capable of the right mental attitude."

The majority of the camp activities are what Limas prefers to call "planned spontaneity." Although the camp has all the trappings of a resort, many options for participation are open to the stroke victims: archery, volleyball, swimming, fishing, nature walks. "We don't entertain them, we let them entertain themselves," Limas pointed out.

During one afternoon of the "planned spontaneity," some of the women were at poolside, preferring to sun themselves. Through a little coaxing some dangled their feet in the water, others even ventured a dip.

Not Karen Knoff. She was plunging into the pool, climbing out and going in again. "I want again to dive," the young woman said.

She had her stroke six years ago, but it wasn't until six months ago that she made herself try swimming, one of her favorite activities prior to her stroke.

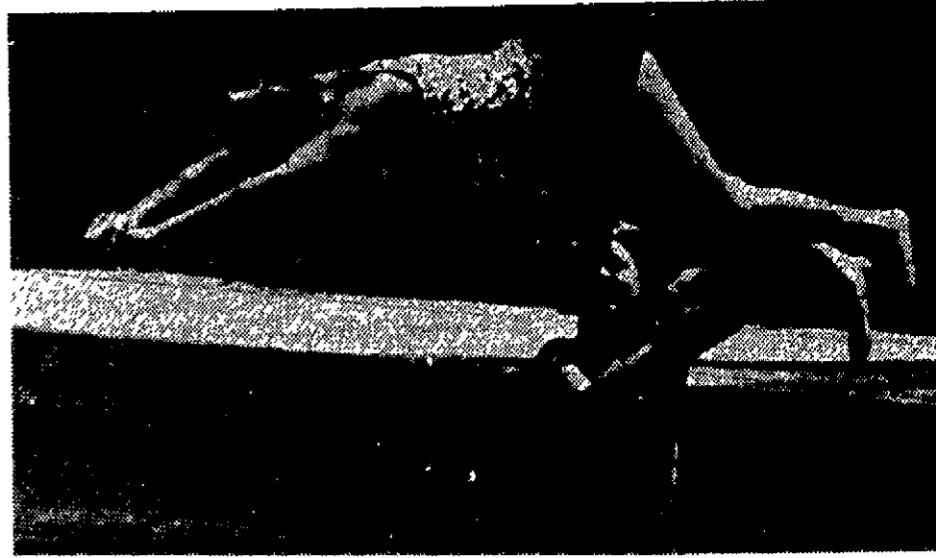

"At first I was scared," she admitted. "But I needed to get out."

Meanwhile, several of the men were working their way down to the fishing hole.

Getting up and down the hills was tricky; it required patience and perseverance.

Asked if they needed help from the counselors, the majority responded emphatically in the negative.

Some wanted to try out that new-found sense of independence. Others further asserted their self-sufficiency, their capabilities — no matter how difficult it was, no matter how long it took.

Karen Knoff, with the assistance of Sandy Carter, is determined to master diving.

The Rev. Gene Keith Dappen of Beatrice, a slight man sporting a beard and mustache, astounded the other campers Monday morning by using his one good arm to climb to the tree tops and into a treehouse.

From there, he issued a challenge to his fellow campers, insisting they join him.

No one did. But each and every one of the onlookers shared Dappen's pride, his feeling of accomplishment.

Pete Bunker was still marveling at Dappen's feat as he carried his tackle box and fishing pole down to the water hole.

Digressing from the tree climb — the subject most on his mind — Bunker said he had "tried swimming a little" the day before.

"I found out I could do something... not as well as before (the stroke), mind you, but it was encouraging to know I can do it," he observed. "Now I have to work at it and develop those muscles."

The camp session is designed for the stroke victims' "abilities, not their disabilities," emphasized Paul Limas of Papillion, director of the Nebraska Easter Seals Society's camp.

"We want to get them out of their sheltered situations and make them aware of their capabilities," the director continued. "They all have adjustments to make; we hope to help them make that adjustment; to give them a new outlook... a new image of themselves and their environment.

"They can become more self-sufficient by realizing they still are capable of the right mental attitude."

The majority of the camp activities are what Limas prefers to call "planned spontaneity." Although the camp has all the trappings of a resort, many options for participation are open to the stroke victims: archery, volleyball, swimming, fishing, nature walks. "We don't entertain them, we let them entertain themselves," Limas pointed out.

During one afternoon of the "planned spontaneity," some of the women were at poolside, preferring to sun themselves. Through a little coaxing some dangled their feet in the water, others even ventured a dip.

Not Karen Knoff. She was plunging into the pool, climbing out and going in again. "I want again to dive," the young woman said.

She had her stroke six years ago, but it wasn't until six months ago that she made herself try swimming, one of her favorite activities prior to her stroke.

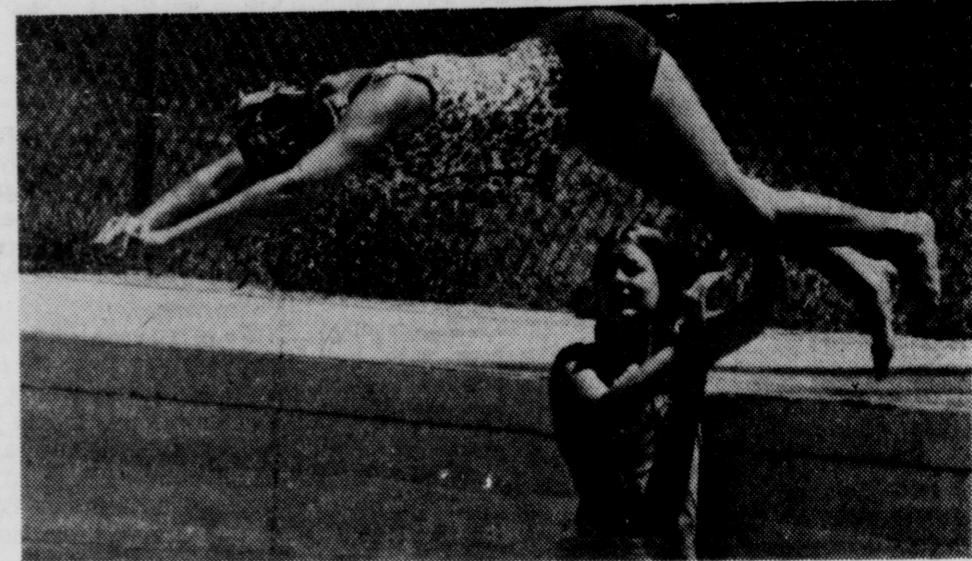

"At first I was scared," she admitted. "But I needed to get out."

Meanwhile, several of the men were working their way down to the fishing hole.

Getting up and down the hills was tricky; it required patience and perseverance.

Asked if they needed help from the counselors, the majority responded emphatically in the negative.

Some wanted to try out that new-found sense of independence. Others further asserted their self-sufficiency, their capabilities — no matter how difficult it was, no matter how long it took.

Karen Knoff, with the assistance of Sandy Carter, is determined to master diving.

Randi Hoyt lost 77 pounds.

Then, Randi's husband worked off 70 pounds, and she wanted to lose, too. On the Ayds plan, she lost 77.

It's a delightful little parlor game — "If you could go backward or forward in time, who would you like to meet?" — played for amusement, because the chance of such a thing happening is beyond the realm of all probability.

However, in the world of science fiction, such limitations can be forgotten, and, in fact, they are forgotten when author Brian W. Aldiss takes on the time/space continuum in his new sci-fi novel, "Frankenstein Unbound" (Random House).

The victim — or benefactor — of the rupture in the fabric of space/time is one Joseph Bodenland, a grandfatherish ex-presidential advisor, and resident of New Houston, Tex.

The year is 2020 A.D., and due to a global nuclear war, the infrastructure of space "has been destroyed, or at least damaged, to the point at which it malfunctions unpredictably... Both time and space have gone 'on the blink,' as the saying has it."

On the blink to the extent that timeslips become the order of the day:

"Cloud was rolling in overhead. Over the plain, coming in fast, was thick mist... Ahead I could see the land stretching as usual, and the low roofs of the old stables. But beyond the roofs, the hills had gone! And to the left, driveway and pampas grass had disappeared. They were replaced by a lumpy piece of country, very green and broken and dotted with green trees — like nowhere in Texas."

And, poof, like that, Bodenland and his companions are transported back to the Middle Ages.

During one of the timeslips, Bodenland sets out in his nuclear power-driven car in an effort to discover the nature of the changes. But he doesn't make it back to the house before time slips back to its "normal" state.

He finds himself in Switzerland. The year — 1818.

Fascinated by his newfound surroundings, he wanders into taverns and inns, savoring the experience of being the first man ever displaced in time.

However, idyll becomes nightmare when the time-traveler becomes caught up in an adventure involving the illustrious Lord Byron, a lesser-known poet, Percy Shelley, the latter's mistress (and later, wife), Mary; and Victor Frankenstein, the monster-maker immortalized in Mary Shelley's novel.

Frankenstein — the harbinger of the Age of Science which brought so much distress upon the world of Joseph Bodenland.

Frankenstein — "the archetype of the scientist whose research, pursued in the sacred name of increasing knowledge, takes on a life of its own and causes untold misery before being brought under control."

How to stop the cursed machine before it gets started. How to divert mankind from its horrible rendezvous with Science. These are the chilling tasks that confront Bodenland, and compel him into a frozen wasteland for a final confrontation with the accursed monster.

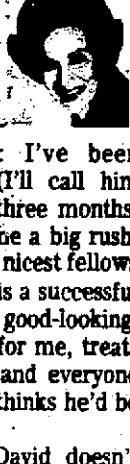

Aldiss's book is a must for science fiction buffs, as well as those of us who usually avoid the genre.

With a most compelling style, eloquent in its own right, and interspersed with poetic interludes a la Byron and Shelley, the author transports the reader into an engrossing world of fantasy.

In Bodenland, he has created a startlingly real character, with whom it is easy to identify. And he has opened an intriguing, if not new, question for the reader who once again finds himself wondering, "What would I do?"

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a fellow (I'll call him David) for about three months. He's been giving me a big rush. David is one of the nicest fellows I've ever met. He is a successful professional man, good-looking, just the right age for me, treats me like a queen, and everyone who has met him thinks he'd be ideal for me.

The problem: David doesn't kiss very well. To be perfectly honest, it's more serious than that. When he kisses me, nothing (but absolutely nothing!) happens. Abby, I'm 25 and experienced (but I'm no tramp), and I am not all that difficult to turn on.

Don't tell me to teach him. If he can't even turn me on, I'm not about to give him kissing lessons.

What should I do? I hate to give him up because he is by far the most eligible man I've ever dated, except for this one fault.

How important do you think sex is in marriage?

LIBRA

DEAR LIBRA: How important I think it is doesn't matter. It's how important YOU think it is that counts. No one can (or should) make that decision for you. List your priorities in order of their importance and you'll have the answer.

Are Snacks Bad?

Are snacks really bad? No — not necessarily. Not if they are nutritious foods that help provide the nutrients needed each day for good health. Of course the total amount of food eaten during the day, including snacks, should not contribute more calories than needed.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Many Senior Citizens Choose To Live Together Without Benefit Of Clergy

By ROBERT PETERSON

QUESTION: — "I'm a widow receiving welfare assistance of $86 a month. This and my minimum Social Security just about permit me to get by. Recently I've met a wonderful widow, 72, who also receives welfare assistance and whose total income is about the same as mine. We'd like to marry and pool our income, and figure we could live a lot better because we could live in his apartment or mine and would be cooking for two instead of one. But now someone tells me they'll cut our present income if we live together. Is this true?"

ANSWER: — Probably. Welfare grants to Social Security recipients are based on actual living costs. When you are wed, a social worker will come and evaluate your combined expenses and will likely find your total costs are less living together in one domicile. This finding will probably result in a downward adjustment of your total welfare grants. This is why many practical, romantically inclined elders spurn convention and live together without benefit of clergy. We're not recommending it, but must admit it makes economic sense if money is a problem.

QUESTION: — "Who do you think you are saying older people who look shabby and poorly dressed are a disgrace to themselves and other elders? What if one doesn't feel like fixing up? I had surgery six months ago and still feel half alive. I don't feel like fixing up and don't care what people think."

ANSWER: — That's your privilege. But maybe you'd feel better if you looked better.

There's a definite correlation between our mirror image and the state of our spirits. It takes just a little extra effort to look neat and clean, and the effect on our spirits is often miraculous.

QUESTION: — "My father, 72, is the only grandparent our children have. He lives in a big house and the children love to visit there, except that he's so fussy and particular. They're dying to explore his attic, basement, and various rooms filled with souvenirs collected during his 16 years in Africa as a mining engineer. But he won't let the children out of his sight and when they show interest in something says impatiently, 'That's not a toy,' or 'You mustn't look in there,' or 'Don't touch.' Is this what happens when folks get old?"

ANSWER: — Not usually. Most elders are intelligent enough to realize life is short and few things are more important than sharing treasures with their grandchildren. Maybe you need to remind your father that he can't take these possessions with him and that he should stop being so selfish. Children should be permitted to indulge their natural curiosity. Fussy old grandparents are not fondly remembered by their grandchildren.

★ ★ ★

QUESTION: — "Are people happier in retirement years than in earlier decades?"

ANSWER: — Some are, and some aren't. Happiness is a very ephemeral state which is almost impossible to measure. People often get a rosy nostalgia harking back to their youth and thinking these years were their happiest — unaware that time has a way of gilding memories. Others claim they're happiest in old age and they wouldn't repeat their lives again if they could. I suspect most people retain about the same level of happiness throughout life.

NFL Negotiations End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between the National Football League owners and players broke off Wednesday, paving the way for a strike that could possibly wipe out the exhibition season.

The talks were ended after it became apparent that there would be no immediate agreement on the 63 demands made by the players March 16.

Federal mediator James Searce said he thought the sessions Tuesday and Wednesday had been fruitful but, "we have reached the point now where we cannot be constructive." Searce said that the sessions are amicably recessed with both of the parties subject to return to the negotiating table at his call.

"We need a breakthrough on the freedom issues," he said. "There needs to be a key."

The negotiating meeting was recessed following a lunch break after a two-hour morning session during which financial matters were discussed.

"We're resigned to a strike," said John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, after leaving the 15-minute afternoon session.

Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, the union president, said it now appears that the strike Monday would become a reality because the owners will not respond to the players' demands.

"Nothing has changed since March 16," Curry said. "We said freedom and they charged us with anarchy. They have not put forth a meaningful response to our demands."

"The gauntlet is down," he continued. "There is going to have to be a power play. We're going to have to conduct a strike."

Curry said that picket lines have been set up and would be established at each of the 26 NFL training camps, beginning in San Diego on July 3, and pickets would also be at training sites where players would work out.

The union also said that it would try to prevent rookies from reporting to camp and planned to picket the annual College All-Star game in Chicago July 26 and the teams' training site at Evanston, Ill., if the strike lasted that long.

Curry also indicated that a picket line might be set up around the NFL headquarters in New York to prevent NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and his staff from entering the building.

"Anyone who crosses our picket line is not neutral," Curry said.

The players association has maintained that Rozelle does not represent them, as he claims, but is in reality a spokesman for the owners.

E d Garvey, Thompson's counterpart in the players union, said: "They're not responding, they're not saying anything. We've 63 demands and they've responded meaningfully to about three. I don't think they are bargaining in good faith."

"I think they are telling us they are willing to take a strike, playing the exhibition games with rookies," he said. The two sides spent the morning session discussing a report made public by the owners several weeks ago indicating that each of the 26 NFL clubs made an average profit last year of $40,000 before taxes. The players claim the owners made approximately $2.3 million.

"They asked some questions and we tried to supply the answers," Thompson said. "We tried to explore why our figures are what they are and why they are so far off."

"We're dealing in facts, and they're dealing with estimates," he said.

The meetings were closed to the public and the news media, but angry voices could be heard coming from the negotiating room down the hall from the players association offices in downtown Washington.

The union has said it would strike Monday, three days prior to the opening of the first training camp, if the owners didn't agree to the 63 demands.

The crux of the demands are the so-called "freedom issues" which call for the elimination of the reserve clause, the option clause, the waiver system and the rule which allows Rozelle to order compensation for a club when one of its athletes plays out his option and signs with another team.

Thompson said the owners are willing to discuss a modification of the NFL's rules and regulations dealing with the freedom issues, "but we reject their total elimination."

Marshall, Mota Pace Dodgers' Win

By The Associated Press

Mike Marshall came on in the eighth inning to collect his fifth victory in as many Dodger triumphs, and Los Angeles edged the Atlanta Braves 5-4.

Manny Mota drilled a run-scoring pinch single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning to bring home the winning run for Marshall, now 9-4.

Mota's single followed Joe Ferguson's second home run of the day which tied the game 4-4.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets trimmed the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

In American League action, the Cleveland Indians edged the New York Yankees 3-2, the Oakland A's defeated the California Angels 5-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 7-1.

The Pittsburgh Pirates crushed the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2, the Montreal Expos blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0, and the Cincinnati Reds bombed the Houston Astros 9-1 in National League night games.

In American League night action, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Detroit Tigers 5-4; the Kansas City Royals edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 12 innings, and the Minnesota Twins topped the Texas Rangers 9-4.

Revised Scheduling

Omaha — John Maluvius knows Ak-Sar-Ben has a problem and he's taking steps that hopefully will attract better horses for Ak's major races.

"Sure, we're disappointed that some of the better horses didn't run here for the Governors," said Ak-Sar-Ben's racing secretary. "But we're going to have one problem as long as there's Ak-Sar-Ben. It's easier to get to New York, Chicago or Detroit than it is to get here."

"It's always easier to run at home than to ship to someplace else," he said. "For instance take our Gold Cup Stakes. The same day we run ours for $75,000 there's a 3-year-old race (the same conditions as this Saturday's Gold Cup) for $100,000 at Arlington (near Chicago). The only chance we have of getting some of their horses if there's a tough horse in Chicago and some of the owners want out and then they'll come here."

So why were the two races scheduled for the same day?

John Maluvius

"It's always easier to run at home than to ship to someplace else," he said. "For instance take our Gold Cup Stakes. The same day we run ours for $75,000 there's a 3-year-old race (the same conditions as this Saturday's Gold Cup) for $100,000 at Arlington (near Chicago). The only chance we have of getting some of their horses if there's a tough horse in Chicago and some of the owners want out and then they'll come here."

Nancy Teague, who led after the first day with a 78, shot an 86 Wednesday and fell eight strokes behind the veteran Jean.

Jean, who may be hard to beat now for her fifth straight and 13th overall city title, took the lead on the 475-yard No. 1 with a par five.

The lefthanded Nancy took a double bogey seven, then followed with a bogey on Nos. 2, 3 and 4, parred Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8 before taking another bogey on No. 9 for a front nine score of 44, four-over-par.

Meanwhile, Jean parred Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, and 8, bogeyed only No. 7, while getting birdies on Nos. 4 and 9 for a 39.

On the back nine, the consistent Hyland parred every hole, except the 366-yard par five where she had a birdie for a one-under-par 38.

Nancy parred Nos. 10, 16 and 18, birdied Nos. 15 and 17, bogeyed Nos. 12, 13, 14 and double bogeyed No. 17 for a three-over-par 42.

Betty Abel remained in third place with another 86 for a 36-hole total of 172, while Jan Weyhrauch moved into fourth with an 89 and 180 total.

The tournament will conclude Thursday at Lincoln Country Club. Jean's home course where she shot a 76 last week in practice for this tournament.

Other Horses
Tom Tulle, who also would have carried 121 pounds in the Governors', won the $100,000 Michigan Mile and One-Eighth in Detroit. Everton II also ran in the Detroit chase. Two other possible entrants, List and Rastaferian took their chances at the Michigan race.

The Governors' carried a purse of $55,887, which definitely is high enough to attract first-class horses. But when compared with the Hollywood Gold Cup or the Michigan Mile it's lagging behind.

The real test of the strength of Ak-Sar-Ben will come next Saturday when Ak hosts the Cornhusker Handicap, the first $100,000 race ever in Nebraska. There is no other $100,000 race set for that Saturday.

The only other 100-grander that weekend is the Vanity Handicap on Sunday at Hollywood Park for 3-year-old and up fillies and mares. That means that if 3-year-old and up colts or geldings want a crack at a $100,000 purse Ak-Sar-Ben is their only track.

Omaha officials are hopeful that Darby Dan Farms' True Knight, the original top-weight at 125 pounds for the Governors', will show. Other possible runners include F. W. Hooper's Tri Jet (who would have been second top-weight with 123 in the Governors').

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, chairman of the board of trustees of the New York Racing Association, has expressed interest in running his North Sea in the Cornhusker.

If that plan materializes it will be the "name horse and owner" that will unquestionably prove to the nation's racing leaders that Ak-Sar-Ben has the type of facility and race that deserves the national attention it has wrongfully been deprived of the past few years.

With the right conditions, 30,000 fans will bet a record $2 million next Saturday on the day of Cornhusker Handicap. Those figures alone would indicate the strides Ak-Sar-Ben has been making the past few years and how much racing means to this state.

Ken Pardee, of Beatrice, flips end over end in the consolation race after being bumped into the rail by a trailing car.

The Midwest Speedway track was dry, slick and tricky so Ray Lee Goodwin switched from drag tires to rain tires on his sprint car, and ran away with the feature Wednesday night ahead of Lonnie Jensen and Lloyd Beckman.

Paul Splitteroff held Chicago to six hits and Hal McRae's run-scoring single in the 12th inning brought in the winning run for Kansas City. Splitteroff had given up just four hits until the ninth, when Dick Allen cracked his 10th home run of the season to force the game into extra innings.

Tony Oliva drove in four runs—three of them with his sixth home run of the season—to lead the Twins past the Rangers.

Lincolnite Jensen took the lead in the 25-lap event and held a slim advantage over Beckman and Goodwin until the 11th lap when Goodwin caught Jensen going high on the first turn and soared into a lead which he stretched to one half a lap by the finish.

"When you get a lead then you can let up a little and go lower through the turns then the tires grab just that much more. We call that, gathering up," said Goodwin, a Kansas City native.

Goodwin, who holds the Midwest point leadership in the sprint car standings, has finished in the top five of every race he entered this year.

"Tonight's feature wasn't as good as I would have liked it, because I run better against better competition."

"I know how my car is going to run and I try to wait for the other guy to make a mistake," concluded Goodwin.

Beckman, who had missed the past few weeks of racing, made a successful comeback placing third in the A feature.

"Here I am, a grandfather, and I can still keep up with the kids I guess you could say I'm happy," said Beckman.

"I lost a spark plug near the end of the race and didn't have enough power to catch Lonnie (Jensen) or Ray Lee (Goodwin). But with a little more time in the car we expect to be running on top," concluded Beckman.

The only accident of any consequence came in the consolation when, bumped from behind, Ken Pardee of Beatrice, hit the rail and flipped twice, Pardee escaped without injury.

Jim Golden of Palmyra captured the B feature ahead of Lincolnite Frank Brennfoerder, in the night's most exciting race.

Evert, Hunt Set To Resume Match

Wimbledon, England (AP) — Chris Evert, the imperturbable American teen-ager in pink bows, and Lesley Hunt, a tom-boyish Australian playing with go-for-broke abandon, battled 44 games to no decision Wednesday in one of the most historic women's matches of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

The two were tied 9-9 in the third set in a thrilling see-saw battle when referee Mike Gibson strode to the umpire's chair in center court and ordered play stopped because of darkness.

The start of the day's play had been delayed for more than 3 1/2 hours by rain.

The match will be completed Thursday, weather permitting, with Miss Hunt serving.

When the decision to stop was announced, a crowd of 10,000 hardy fans, who patiently waited through the rain and cold, let out a roar of protest.

But it was so dark that Miss Evert, in a pink and white dress with a scalloped hem, and Miss Hunt, in white pants and white toga, were barely visible.

The second-seeded Miss Evert, the 19-year-old pride of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was making her 1974 Wimbledon debut. She won the first set 8-6, and Miss Hunt, a 24-year-old daughter of a Perth real estate man, had taken the second 7-5.

Then came the third, with the plucky, hard-hitting Australian battling back from a 5-3 deficit, tying the set and carrying it into a seemingly unending match. Wimbledon has no tie-break for the final set.

When the match was halted, it had gone 44 games and 2 hours, 45 minutes. The most games ever played in a women's Wimbledon were 46 in 1970 when Margaret Court of Australia beat Billie Jean King for the crown 14-12, 11-9.

Three of the top four men's seeds, John Newcombe, Ilie Nastase and Stan Smith, advanced to the third round with straight-set victories, but 18-year-old idol Bjorn Borg of Sweden had a temper tantrum while leading his match with Ross Case, two sets to one.

He almost disqualified himself before the match finally was halted by darkness with the blond-haired Scandinavian leading the Australian, 3-6, 6-1, 8-6, 14.

The top-seeded Newcombe, bidding for his fourth Wimbledon crown, beat fellow Australian Geoff Masters, 9-2, 6-3, 8-6.

Nastase, the puckish Romanian who is seeded No. 2, swept past Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6-3, 6-2, 9-8, and Smith, the fourth seed from Sea Pines, S.C., who won here in 1972, coasted to a 6-4, 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Bob Maud of South Africa.

Grand Island's Del Ryder, the NAGA's executive secretary, believes the 32-man Alliance field is the best in the 5-year history of the state match play tournament.

"It has two former state champions in Bob Astleford and Dan Bahensky and two state match play champions in Walter and Mike Ley," points out Ryder.

Walter will try to preserve a very definite Lincoln domination of the state match play tournament. Three of the five former champions are Capital City competitors: Matt Tabor (1969), Ley (1972) and Walter (1973).

North Platte's Charlie Borner, the 1970 state match play champion, is another Lincoln product. York's Bill McNaught is the other former champion, having won in 1971.

NFL Negotiations End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between the National Football League owners and players broke off Wednesday, paving the way for a strike that could possibly wipe out the exhibition season.

The talks were ended after it became apparent that there would be no immediate agreement on the 63 demands made by the players March 16.

Federal mediator James Searce said he thought the sessions Tuesday and Wednesday had been fruitful but, "we have reached the point now where we cannot be constructive." Searce said that the sessions are amicably recessed with both of the parties subject to return to the negotiating table at his call.

"We need a breakthrough on the freedom issues," he said. "There needs to be a key."

The negotiating meeting was recessed following a lunch break after a two-hour morning session during which financial matters were discussed.

"We're resigned to a strike," said John Thompson, executive director of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, after leaving the 15-minute afternoon session.

Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, the union president, said it now appears that the strike Monday would become a reality because the owners will not respond to the players' demands.

"Nothing has changed since March 16," Curry said. "We said freedom and they charged us with anarchy. They have not put forth a meaningful response to our demands."

"The gauntlet is down," he continued. "There is going to have to be a power play. We're going to have to conduct a strike."

Curry said that picket lines have been set up and would be established at each of the 26 NFL training camps, beginning in San Diego on July 3, and pickets would also be at training sites where players would work out.

The union also said that it would try to prevent rookies from reporting to camp and planned to picket the annual College All-Star game in Chicago July 26 and the teams' training site at Evanston, Ill., if the strike lasted that long.

Curry also indicated that a picket line might be set up around the NFL headquarters in New York to prevent NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and his staff from entering the building.

"Anyone who crosses our picket line is not neutral," Curry said.

The players association has maintained that Rozelle does not represent them, as he claims, but is in reality a spokesman for the owners.

Ed Garvey, Thompson's counterpart in the players union, said: "They're not responding, they're not saying anything. We've 63 demands and they've responded meaningfully to about three. I don't think they are bargaining in good faith."

"I think they are telling us they are willing to take a strike, playing the exhibition games with rookies," he said. The two sides spent the morning session discussing a report made public by the owners several weeks ago indicating that each of the 26 NFL clubs made an average profit last year of $940,000 before taxes. The players claim the owners made approximately $2.3 million.

"They asked some questions and we tried to supply the answers," Thompson said. "We tried to explore why our figures are what they are and why they are so far off."

"We're dealing in facts, and they're dealing with estimates," he said.

The meetings were closed to the public and the news media, but angry voices could be heard coming from the negotiating room down the hall from the players association offices in downtown Washington.

The union has said it would strike Monday, three days prior to the opening of the first training camp, if the owners didn't agree to the 63 demands.

The crux of the demands are the so-called "freedom issues" which call for the elimination of the reserve clause, the option clause, the waiver system and the rule which allows Rozelle to order compensation for a club when one of its athletes plays out his option and signs with another team.

Thompson said the owners are willing to discuss a modification of the NFL's rules and regulations dealing with the freedom issues, "but we reject their total elimination."

place but the battle for second found Mac Heimbaugh and Jim Riggins battling through the turns so closely that the race was delayed twice as the two bumped and nudged each other into spins twice throughout the 15-lap event, while Brennenfelder avoided trouble and finished second.

Jensen and Sutcliffe traded firsts and seconds in the first heat and the trophy dash, with Jensen snaring the 6-lap trophy.

Marshall, Mota Pace Dodgers' Win

By The Associated Press

Mike Marshall came on in the eighth inning to collect his fifth victory in as many Dodger triumphs, and Los Angeles edged the Atlanta Braves 5-4.

Manny Mota drilled a run-scoring pinch single with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning to bring home the winning run for Marshall, now 9-3.

Mota's single followed Joe Ferguson's second home run of the day which tied the game 4-4.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets trimmed the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

In American League action, the Cleveland Indians edged the New York Yankees 3-2, the Oakland A's defeated the California Angels 5-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 7-1.

The Pittsburgh Pirates crushed the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2, the Montreal Expos blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0, and the Cincinnati Reds bombed the Houston Astros 9-1 in National League night games.

In American League night action, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Detroit Tigers 5-4; the Kansas City Royals edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 12 innings, and the Minnesota Twins topped the Texas Rangers 9-4.

Left-hander Dave Hamilton pitched a two-hitter, allowing only singles to Dave Chalk and Bobby Valentine. Angel Mangual and Bert Campaneris hit home runs to help the A's sweep their three-game series with the slumping Angels.

Milwaukee's pitcher Ed Sprague allowed only four hits, three in the fifth inning, while pitching his first complete game in the major leagues. The 29-year-old veteran making his sixth start since coming out of the bullpen, pitched no-hit ball for four innings before yielding Carlton Fisk's double.

Cleveland got the home-run help from Oscar Gamble and Rusty Torres, who also threw out a runner in the sixth inning when the Yankees scored both of their runs.

Cleon Jones' 12th inning single drove in pinch runner John Milner with the winning run for the Mets. The Mets and Cubs had battled to a 4-4 error-filled tie in the first seven innings after New York built a 2-0 lead on single runs in the first and sixth.

Meanwhile, Jean parred Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, and 8, bogeyed only No. 7, while getting birdies on Nos. 4 and 9 for a 39.

Nancy Teague, who led after the first day with a 78, shot an 86 Wednesday and fell eight strokes behind the veteran Jean.

Jean, who may be hard to beat now for her fifth straight and 13th overall city title, took the lead on the 475-yard No. 1 with a par five.

The left-handed Nancy took a double bogey seven, then followed with a bogey on Nos. 2 and 4, parred Nos. 5, 6, 7 and eight before taking another bogey on No. 9 for a front nine score of 44, four-over-par.

Meanwhile, Jean parred Nos. 2, 3, 5, 6, and 8, bogeyed only No. 7, while getting birdies on Nos. 4 and 9 for a 39.

On the back nine, the consistent Hyland parred every hole, except the 366-yard par five where she had a birdie for a one-under-par 38.

Nancy parred Nos. 10, 16 and 18, birdied Nos. 11 and 15, bogeyed Nos. 12, 13, 14 and double bogeyed No. 17 for a three-over-par 44.

Betty Abel remained in third place with another 86 for a 36-hole total of 172, while Jan Weyhrauch moved into fourth with an 89 and 88.

The tournament will conclude Thursday at Lincoln Country Club, Jean's home course where she shot a 76 last week in practice for this tournament.

Revised Scheduling

Omaha — John Maluvius knows Ak-Sar-Ben has a problem and he's taking steps that hopefully will attract better horses for Ak's major races.

"Sure, we're disappointed that some of the better horses didn't run here for the Governors," said Ak-Sar-Ben's racing secretary. "But we're going to have one problem as long as there's Ak-Sar-Ben. It's easier to get to New York, Chicago or Detroit than it is to get here."

"It's always easier to run at home than to ship to someplace else," he said. "For instance take our Gold Cup Stakes. The same day we run ours for $75,000 there's a 3-year-old race (the same conditions as this Saturday's Gold Cup) for $100,000 at Arlington (near Chicago). The only chance we have of getting some of their horses if there's a tough horse in Chicago and some of the owners want out and then they'll come here."

So why were the two races scheduled for the same day?

"For years, Arlington Park had the same dates, but this year they started later (June 3)," he said. "If they get their same dates for next year, then they'll get their stakes book out by the first of the year and that will give us a chance to adjust our schedule so we don't try to run our best races against theirs."

"We didn't know until a month before we opened what Arlington was going to do and then it was too late to change ours," he added. "We have the possibility of adjusting our schedule next year, if we know sooner what Arlington is going to do."

Take Saturday's Governors' race. The first eight top-weighted horses didn't run here. Finalista, the third top-weight at 121, pounds ran in the $150,000 Hollywood Gold Cup and finished eighth.

Other Horses

Tom Tulle, who also would have carried 121 pounds in the Governors', won the $100,000 Michigan Mile and One-Eighth in Detroit. Everett II also ran in the Detroit chase. Two other possible entrants, List and Rastaferian took their chances at the Michigan race.

The Governors' carried a purse of $55,887, which definitely is high enough to attract first-class horses. But when compared with the Hollywood Gold Cup or the Michigan Mile it's lagging behind.

The real test of the strength of Ak-Sar-Ben will come next Saturday when Ak hosts the Cornhusker Handicap, the first $100,000 race ever in Nebraska. There is no other $100,000 race set for that Saturday.

The only other 100-grandster that weekend is the Vanity Handicap on Sunday at Hollywood Park for 3-year-old and up fillies and mares. That means that if 3-year-old and up colts or geldings want a crack at a $100,000 purse Ak-Sar-Ben is their only track.

Omaha officials are hopeful that Darby Dan Farms' True Knight, the original top-weight at 125 pounds for the Governors', will show. Other possible runners include F. W. Hooper's Tri Jet (who would have been second top-weight with 123 in the Governors').

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, chairman of the board of trustees of the New York Racing Association, has expressed interest in running his North Sea in the Cornhusker.

If that plan materializes it will be the "name horse and owner" that will unquestionably prove to the nation's racing leaders that Ak-Sar-Ben has the type of facility and race that deserves the national attention it has wrongfully been deprived of the past few years.

With the right conditions, 30,000 fans will bet a record $2 million next Saturday on the day of Cornhusker Handicap. Those figures alone would indicate the strides Ak-Sar-Ben has been making the past few years and how much racing means to this state.

Intense Action Upsets Ak-Sar-Ben Opponents

Omaha — R. Hamm and B. Rapp's Intense Action scored an upset victory over eight fillies and mares here Wednesday in the featured seventh race at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Ridden by Arturo Romero, the 5-year-old mare scooted to a 1:10.2-2 clocking over the 6 furlongs to capture the allowance race with a $10,000 purse.

Intense Action, who scored her first 1974 victory after 10 winless outings, returned $36.00, $9.20 and $6.20. The Kansas City Racing Stable's National Risk placed for $3.40 and $1.80 while V. and O. Preuss' Sonny's Delight showed for $3.60.

NU Medical Center Awarded VA Grant

Washington (AP) — The University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha has been awarded an $83,499 Veterans Administration (VA) grant for the fiscal year 1975, it was announced here Wednesday.

The grant will permit continued development of a two-way closed circuit television system from the center to stations on the VA Nebraska Network. Other network members are the VA hospitals at Lincoln, Omaha, and Grand Island, the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry and the Creighton University School of Medicine.

The television network is part of the VA's exchange of medical information program, and provides educational and clinical programming.

Among the specialty areas are psychiatry, internal medicine and rehabilitation.

Patient-oriented programs are being developed by the Medical Center.

The center also is expected to continue original programming involving a broad spectrum of subjects around the health area theme.

Secret Agent's Skeleton Is Found After 3 Years

London (UPI) — Scotland Yard indicated bafflement Wednesday in the case of Sir John Peregrine Henninger-Heaton — the secret agent who came in from the cold and stayed there until his skeleton was found three years later behind a locked door in his home.

Police sources said a preliminary autopsy had failed to establish the cause of his death. A coroner's inquest was ordered to begin the formal inquiry.

Henninger-Heaton, 68, a retired Middle East agent for British intelligence, told his wife, Lady Margaret, one chilly October evening in 1971 he was going out for a drink at the Cricket Club. It may have been his last walk out into the cold.

After the tall, Van Dyke-bearded Heaton, the third baronet in his line, walked out of his red-brick Victorian villa in the quiet suburb of Ealing, he was never seen again alive.

Heaton's son and heir, Yvo, 20, said he came across an odd key in a desk drawer last Sunday. It opened the door to his father's old smoking den.

Inside on a bed he found the skeleton of his father. An empty whisky bottle lay nearby and an apparent suicide note was found in the pocket of his suit, police said.

London newspapers said the note, addressed to his wife, said he could not carry on and asked — Why was the ground floor room at the rear of the house not searched in the beginning?

Police said they had been told at the time that the house had been combed from top to bottom.

— With Lady Margaret, their son, a boarder and three dogs living in the house, how did the presence of a decaying body go undetected?

Scotland Yard sources said questions still unanswered include:

— During the violent years of the birth of Israel, Heaton was in charge of British security in Palestine and the target of at least four bomb attacks.

— When he disappeared, his family expressed the belief that he was the victim of Arab or Israeli guerrillas. But various trails led nowhere.

UNL Chancellor Zumberge Nominated To NSF Board

James H. Zumberge, chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was one of eight persons nominated Wednesday by the White House to serve on the board of the National Science Foundation (NSF) for terms expiring in May, 1980.

If confirmed by Congress, Zumberge will join 24 eminent scientific figures serving the government by reviewing national scientific needs, policies and programs, and by recommending "general steps to advance basic research and education."

A geologist active in energy research, Zumberge said Wednesday the nomination "is another opportunity for me to continue in my role as public servant. It's what my life has been dedicated to."

The chancellor said serving on the NSF board would cast him in a new role: while he has received research grants since 1957, he would be "determining the broader policy of how NSF spends $800 million in next year's budget," in allocations for research.

NSF "used to be a foundation opposed to fields of applied research" to solve specific problems, pursuing instead basic research from which there was "no immediate payoff."

But NSF's attitude toward applied research has changed distinctly, Zumberge said, with a "commitment to funding programs" in the fields of energy and the environment, for example, that are "of legitimate benefit to mankind."

The NSF board, he said, is "quite an able group." Others nominated by the White House Wednesday are:

Jewel P. Cobb, a professor of zoology and dean of Connecticut College.

Norman Hackerman, president of Rice University in Texas, who has served on the NSF board since 1968.

William N. Hubbard Jr., a leading figure in medical education and now vice president of the Upjohn Co. in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Saunders Mac Lane, professor of mathematics at the University of Chicago and vice president of the National Academy of Sciences.

Grover E. Murray, a geologist and president of Texas Tech University.

Donald B. Rice Jr., an economist from California and former deputy assistant secretary of defense.

Donald Shields, professor of chemistry and president of California State University at Fullerton.

Coroner Tells Autopsy Facts Of Sniper, Policeman Deaths

Omaha (UPI) — In making public autopsy reports relating to a June 6 sniper incident on Omaha's Near North Side, Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan ruled the death of the sniper, Eliza Carr Jr., 33, by police gunfire; a justifiable homicide and the death of a policeman, Paul Nields, 29, a homicide.

Dr. J. W. Jones, the University of Nebraska Medical Center pathologist who conducted the autopsies, said the type of buckshot in Nields' body was "absolutely different" from the police riot buckshot embedded in Carr's body.

Near the end of the nearly five-hour ordeal, Nields rushed unauthorized into the rooming house where Carr was as officers were attempting to fire tear gas into the structure from a front porch.

Although the density of the tear gas prevented officers from seeing Carr, they theorized that he was on a stairway landing leading up to the second floor of the home when he fired a 12-gauge shotgun blast into the top middle right portion of Nields' head.

The autopsy report said Nields died from a shotgun wound in the brain, which showed "extensive laceration and disruption."

Keenan said Carr's body bore evidence of 14 bullet wounds. All of those were made by police riot buckshot except one, which was made by pistol bullet.

Keenan said it was impossible to determine the caliber of the pistol or the entry mark of the bullet but that it did lodge in Carr's abdomen.

Tests on both bodies for blood alcohol content, conducted by Dr. A. R. McIntyre, revealed none. But an initial test on Carr showed a "peak indication of the presence of methadone," a drug commonly used to rehabilitate heroin users. However, further tests failed to confirm or absolutely reject the initial methadone finding.

Keenan said it was impossible to determine which bullet entry triggered Carr's death or whether he had been wounded by previous police gunfire.

His complaint included copies of police reports and a petition he is circulating a grand jury.

Chambers has been critical of police actions during the incidents, and has asked that Police Chief Richard Andersen be dismissed.

He referred to actions during a June 6 shootout at Eliza Carr's house and later the shooting death of Henry Holmes.

Chambers made his request verbally and with a lengthy written complaint in the office of U.S. District Atty. William K. Schaphorst.

Washington (AP) — Official U.S. monetary reserves increased $219 million in May to a total of nearly $14.9 billion, the Treasury Department reported.

UNL Chancellor Zumberge Nominated To NSF Board

James H. Zumberge, chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, was one of eight persons nominated Wednesday by the White House to serve on the board of the National Science Foundation (NSF) for terms expiring in May, 1980.

If confirmed by Congress, Zumberge will join 24 eminent scientific figures serving the government by reviewing national scientific needs, policies and programs, and by recommending general steps to advance basic research and education.

A geologist active in energy research, Zumberge said Wednesday the nomination "is another opportunity for me to continue in my role as public servant. It's what my life has been dedicated to."

The chancellor said serving on the NSF board would cast him in a new role: while he has received research grants since 1957, he would be "determining the broader policy of how NSF spends $800 million in next year's budget," in allocations for research.

NSF "used to be a foundation opposed to fields of applied research" to solve specific problems, pursuing instead basic research from which there was "no immediate payoff."

But NSF's attitude toward applied research has changed distinctly, Zumberge said, with a "commitment to funding programs" in the fields of defense.

buckshot in Nields' body was "absolutely different" from the police riot buckshot embedded in Carr's body.

Near the end of the nearly five-hour ordeal, Nields rushed unauthorized into the rooming house where Carr was as officers were attempting to fire tear gas into the structure from a front porch.

Although the density of the tear gas prevented officers from seeing Carr, they theorized that he was on a stairway landing leading up to the second floor of the home when he fired a 12-gauge shotgun blast into the top middle right portion of Nields' head.

The autopsy report said Nields died from a shotgun wound in the brain, which showed "extensive laceration and disruption."

Keenan said Carr's body bore evidence of 14 bullet wounds. All of those were made by police riot buckshot except one, which was made by pistol bullet.

Keenan said it was impossible to determine the caliber of the pistol or the entry mark of the bullet but that it did lodge in Carr's abdomen.

Tests on both bodies for blood alcohol content, conducted by

Dr. A. R. McIntyre, revealed

none. But an initial test on Carr showed a "peak indication of the presence of methadone," a drug commonly used to rehabilitate heroin users. However, further tests failed to confirm or absolutely reject the initial methadone finding.

Youths Get Life Terms For Murder Of Woman

Omaha (AP) — Two youths convicted of first-degree murder in connection with an attempted purse snatching of an 81-year-old woman were sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment.

Sentenced to the Nebraska Penal Complex by Presiding District Judge Theodore L. Richling were Abe Clark Lytle, 18, and Joseph Hayes Harris, who will be 17 July 4.

Harris and Lytle were charged with first-degree murder in the commission of a felony when Mrs. Carnie Hugg died Dec. 18 from complications of injuries suffered when an attempt was made to snatch her purse. Both youths were convicted by juries.

Richling said Wednesday he did not know if the sentences he imposed would help them, but he told the court he hoped "to send a message to others in the community."

Referring to a recent poll, which he said, claimed seven out of 10 Omahans are afraid to walk the streets at night, Richling addressed Harris and Lytle:

"Why? Because of young men like you."

Woman Claims Discrimination

Beatrice (AP) — The Gage County Board of Supervisors has been named in a sex discrimination complaint filed with the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

Mrs. Joyce Stilwell, 33, a former secretary with the Gage County Weed Control Office, lodged the complaint, charging the board's decision not to hire her as weed control superintendent was motivated primarily by the fact that she is a woman.

The board hired Paul Wiley, a farm laborer from Firth, as weed superintendent May 31. He was chosen from among four applicants.

The vote to hire Wiley was unanimous, but at least one county supervisor agreed with Mrs. Stilwell's charge.

Supervisor Ray Elwood said "the reason she wasn't hired was because she is a female."

Elwood said he was not satisfied with the board's action on the hiring but voted with the majority because of the need to reopen the weed office as soon as possible.

Board Chairman Bill Boyce defended the hiring action. He said he voted to hire Wiley because "he was the most qualified person for the job."

Mrs. Stilwell's complaint contends she was the most qualified person for the position by virtue of her five years of experience as weed office secretary.

The complaint said Mrs. Stilwell's experience included operation of a sprayer truck as well as carrying out legal and administrative duties of the office.

Nebraska Youth Wins $1,000 Speech Contest

Lincoln Star Special

Iowa City, Iowa — Daniel Ripa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ripa of Wilber, Neb., won first place at the 11-state sectional Knights of Pythias public speaking contest held here.

The Wilber youth, a junior at Wilber-Clatonia High School, received a $1,000 scholarship to the college or university of his choice.

The contest consisted of a 10-minute speech on "What is the Future of the Taxpayer." Each entrant was judged on composition and the delivery of the speech.

Young Ripa was accompanied to Iowa City by his high school speech teacher, Mrs. Donna Mackey of Crete, and his mother.

Several of Colman's relatives were seeking to have the foundation's assets turned over to them in the form of a trust fund.

Omaha; and the remainder would be divided among the Martin Luthern Home Society of Beatrice, the Epworth Village of York and the Child Savings Institute of Omaha.

The foundation was set up from the estate of Andrew H. Colman, a Diller banker who designated funds for a boys orphanage in Diller. The orphanage was established in 1938, but closed 18 years later.

The court petition said the trustees "found it impractical . . . for several reasons to operate the home."

The petition said distributing the remaining assets of the foundation to the four charities "will best fulfill the charitable intention of Mr. Colman to devote his property to the benefit of orphan children."

Several of Colman's relatives were seeking to have the foundation's assets turned over to them in the form of a trust fund.

Hopefully within a few months, says President Ted Wells of Seward, service will be restored on the full 85 miles of track abandoned by the Chicago and North Western Railroad in December, 1972.

The company bid $32,966 to restore the Freeman School at Homestead National Monument near Beatrice. The work was expected to begin after July 1 and continue through the summer and early fall.

The Freeman school, built in 1871, was in operation until 1967. Restoration will leave the schoolhouse similar to its appearance prior to 1900.

A Handy Man At Home. If you follow the Home and Yard news column in the "Sunday Journal and Star" you can be. There are many "Do it Yourself" ideas.

Both James Whetsler and John Fox, respectively general master mechanic and section foreman, are former C & NW personnel who were hired away by the tiny branch line.

Whetsler, who had been engineering in Chicago for a decade, will pilot the 1,000 hp locomotive for at least its ceremonial run. Partly for "all this Nebraska clean air," he sacrificed both wages and seniority for the Great Plains.

"Every man has some adventure in him which yearns to be a part of something new," said the 30-year-old newcomer, currently residing in Staplehurst. "I signed on last October and have been kind of a track advisor, tie-puller and little bit of everything up to this point. My wife Juanita has been my assistant in it all."

Six years from a pension, Fox left North Western after devoting nearly all his 32 years' service to "this very same trackage." As its section foreman, the Beaver Crossing resident learned to know "just about every bump and tie."

The 31-year-old locomotive, retired three years ago after a career as a switch engine with the Colorado and Wyoming Railway, arrived in Superior early Wednesday morning. Whetsler may be purchased and erected by fall.

The significance stretches far beyond those initial 12 miles and the dozen or so cars old No. 1109 will pull initially.

Hopefully within a few months, says President Ted Wells of Seward, service will be restored on the full 85 miles of track abandoned by the Chicago and North Western Railroad in December, 1972.

After the C & NW insisted the old Seward-Superior branch was losing money, grainmen and other business leaders subscribed some $300,000 in stock to purchase the operation. A matching loan from the Small Business Administration added another $300,000.

As track crews intensified their efforts in preparation for Thursday's 10 a.m. ceremony, a couple of the new line's key employees were beaming like their diesel's headlight.

Both James Whetsler and John Fox, respectively general master mechanic and section foreman, are former C & NW had brought the unit — the first of three on order — over Santa Fe tracks from Pueblo, Colo.

Although mini-stops Nora and Cadams will generate virtually all the line's revenue this summer, quite a pile of business is waiting. Government grain at both villages' elevators has been tied up since service stopped on the line.

"It was exactly one day after the line was abandoned that we got a government shipping order to move out 130,000 bushels of wheat by rail," said Darrell Jensen, manager of the Cadams Grain Co. "There was a mention later of changing the order to trucking, but it was never finalized."

With this summer's harvest, Jensen figures his firm alone will be shipping out 120 carloads. Up the line at Nora, Manager Ed Rogge expects to exceed even that quantity.

Service further to the north is impossible until a railroad bridge, washed out in a 1969 flood south of Oak, is replaced. Wells said a used bridge in Iowa may be purchased and erected by fall.

Dedication Set For New Highway 47

Gothenburg — Dedication ceremonies marking the formal opening of the new Highway 47 between Gothenburg and Arnold will be held at 2 p.m. today at a point on the highway 17 miles north of Gothenburg. City and chamber of commerce officials from both towns will participate, along with Harold Eason of North Platte, district highway engineer who is retiring at the end of this week. The 16-mile stretch of new highway cost $1,075,000 and replaces a crooked gravel road linking the two towns.

Malec Named Dwight Parade Marshal

Dwight — Joe Malec Sr., formerly of Dwight and founder of Peony Park in Omaha, has accepted the invitation of the Dwight Czech Festival committee to be the honored guest and serve as grand marshal of the Sunday, July 21, parade at the 11th annual Dwight Czech Festival. Malec and his brothers, Jerry and Bohumil, emigrated from Czechoslovakia in 1911 and settled around Dwight.

Nebrascans Favor, Oppose Measures

Washington (AP) — The Senate by an 82 to 9 roll call approved this week an emergency credit program for livestock producers. Nebraska's Senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska voted for the proposal. The Senate defeated by a 64-33 vote, an amendment which would have cut income taxes $6.6 billion and raised corporate taxes by $7 billion. Curtis and Hruska voted against the amendment.

Shelton's Fund Drive A 'Success'

Shelton — The "Pooh Bear Slagle Day" dinner-a-dip benefit supper held here was described as an "absolute success" by Mrs. Jaycees officials. Over 500 persons attended the dinner, donating over $2,000 to the fund to help defray the medical costs for Paul "Pooh Bear" Slagle, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Slagle. The child has incurable cancer. The Mrs. Jaycees of Shelton are behind a crusade to help the family pay medical expenses and "to exemplify the area's feelings for the family and the gallant lad nicknamed for the bear in A.A. Milne's children's stories."

Dr. Aksamit Closing 45-Year Career

Crete — Dr. Leonard Aksamit, dentist here for the past 45 years, plans to retire July 1 and take care of what he terms "fish trouble." Following his graduation from the University of Nebraska in 1929, Dr. Aksamit came to Crete to establish his practice. Taking over the practice now will be Dr. Bruce Kennedy, a native of Norfolk and a recent graduate of NU's Dental College.

Youths Get Life Terms For Murder Of Woman

Omaha (AP) — Two youths convicted of first-degree murder in connection with an attempted purse snatching of an 81-year-old woman were sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment.

Sentenced to the Nebraska Penal Complex by Presiding District Judge Theodore L. Richling were Abe Clark Lyle, 18, and Joseph Hayes Harris, who will be 17 July 4.

"I don't know if you have any sorrow in your hearts, but there should be rivulets running down your face from what you've done to your families," Richling told the pair.

"What did you accomplish? You stole a few lousy dollars. What else but a few dollars could a little old lady who lived in a housing project have? But you were gonna take it; you were tough, you were big shots."

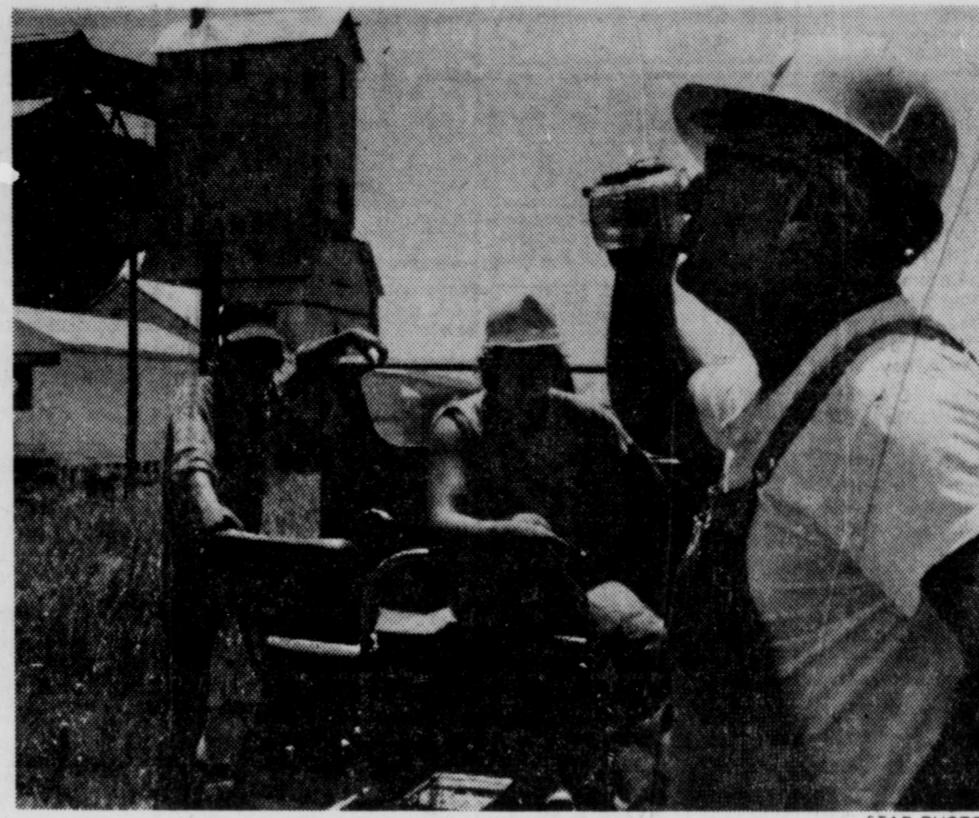

Harris and Lyle were charged with first-degree murder in the commission of a felony when Mrs. Camille Hugg died Dec. 18 from complications of injuries suffered when an attempt was made to snatch her purse. Both youths were convicted by juries.

Richling said Wednesday he did not know if the sentences imposed would help them, but he told the court he hoped "to send a message to others in the community."

Referring to a recent poll, which he said, claimed seven out of 10 Omahans are afraid to walk the streets at night, Richling addressed Harris and Lyle:

"Why? Because of young men like you."

Woman Claims Discrimination

Beatrice (AP) — The Gage County Board of Supervisors has been named in a sex discrimination complaint filed with the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

Mrs. Joyce Stilwell, 33, a former secretary with the Gage County Weed Control Office, lodged the complaint, charging the board's decision not to hire her as weed control superintendent was motivated primarily by the fact that she is a woman.

The board hired Paul Wiley, a farm laborer from Firth, as superintendent May 31. He was chosen from among four applicants.

The vote to hire Wiley was unanimous, but at least one county supervisor agreed with Mrs. Stilwell's charge.

Supervisor Ray Elwood said "the reason she wasn't hired was because she is a female."

Elwood said he was not satisfied with the board's action on the hiring but voted with the majority because of the need to reopen the weed office as soon as possible.

Board Chairman Bill Boyce defended the hiring action. He said he voted to hire Wiley because "he was the most qualified person for the job."

Mrs. Stilwell's complaint contends she was the most qualified person for the position by virtue of her five years of experience as weed office secretary.

The complaint said Mrs. Stilwell's experience included operation of a sprayer truck as well as carrying out legal and administrative duties of the office.

12-Mile Railroad Will Be Lifesaver For Grainmen

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Superior — At first, it sounds like one helluva way to run a railroad. And it sounds like one helluva railroad to run.

When old No. 1109 takes the track here Thursday, she'll be chugging down 12 miles of rail which must be the weediest and rustiest on either side of the Mississippi. Yes, a railroad of 12 miles — for the time being.

Stops? At one end of the line is Superior, which is expected to be just about zilch business-wise because of big-line competition. At the other is Nora and a population of 40-plus. In between there is only two-family Cadams, which claims exactly eight people and one grain elevator.

The contest consisted of a 10-minute speech on "What is the Future of the Taxpayer." Each entrant was judged on composition and the delivery of the speech.

Young Ripa was accompanied to Iowa City by his high school speech teacher, Mrs. Donna Mackey of Crete, and his mother.

The significance stretches far beyond those initial 12 miles and the dozen or so cars old No. 1109 will pull initially.

Hopefully within a few months, says President Ted Wells of Seward, service will be restored on the full 85 miles of track abandoned by the Chicago and North Western Railroad in December, 1972.

After the C & NW insisted the old Seward-Superior branch was losing money, grainmen and other business leaders subscribed some $300,000 in stock to purchase the operation. A matching loan from the Small Business Administration added another $300,000.

As track crews intensified their efforts in preparation for Thursday's 10 a.m. ceremony, a couple of the new line's key employees were beaming like their diesel's headlight.

Both James Whetsler and John Fox, respectively general master mechanic and section foreman, are former C & NW personnel who were hired away by the tiny branch line.

Whetsler, who had been engineering in Chicago for a decade, will pilot the 1,000 hp locomotive for at least its ceremonial run. Partly for "all this Nebraska clean air," he sacrificed both wages and seniority for the Great Plains.

"Every man has some adventure in him which tends to be a part of something new," said the 30-year-old newcomer, currently residing in Staplehurst. "I signed on last October and have been kind of a track advisor, tie-puller and little bit of everything up to this point. My wife Juanita has been my assistant in it all."

It was exactly one day after the line was abandoned that we got a government shipping order to move out 130,000 bushels of wheat by rail," said Darrell Jensen, manager of the Cadams Grain Co. "There was a mention later of changing the order to trucking, but it was never finalized."

With this summer's harvest, Jensen figures his firm alone will be shipping out 120 carloads. Up the line at Nora, Manager Ed Rogge expects to exceed even that quantity.

Service further to the north is impossible until a railroad bridge, washed out in a 1969 flood south of Oak, is replaced. Wells said a used bridge in Iowa may be purchased and erected by fall.

Wishing Well

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
